

PRISONER ESCAPES FROM COUNTY JAIL

BURGLAR WHO HAS BROKEN JAIL AT FOND DU LAC, RECAPTURED AND HELD HERE OVER NIGHT.

UNLOCKED CELL DOOR

Confined in Hospital Cell Above Sheriff's Office. Out Succeeded in Picking Cell Door Lock Early Today.

Clever lock-picking which baffled Sheriff H. H. Hanson and local authorities, resulted in the escape from the Rock county jail at an early hour this morning of a prisoner of many aliases who was being held there over night by Sheriff Charles H. Graham of Fond du Lac county.

This is the second escape at jail-breaking which this fellow has committed within the past three months. He was arrested in Fond du Lac in February on the charge of burglary and was being held for trial in the county jail when he picked the lock to his cell by making a wooden key to fit his cell door.

Brought Here Friday.

He had not been located by the Fond du Lac authorities until a newspaper notice giving an account of a man working at Rockford, Ill., in a manner similar to the methods employed at Fond du Lac, led to the fellow's capture at Rockford yesterday by Sheriff Graham.

Sheriff Graham arrived in Janesville from Rockford with his prisoner yesterday afternoon on the four o'clock interurban car. As there are no trains out of Janesville for Fond du Lac after that hour it was necessary to place the man in the county jail for safe keeping over night. The Sheriff having the intention of leaving for Fond du Lac on the early train this morning.

The prisoner that was, worked under many aliases. His name at Fond du Lac was "Harry," the name of Charles King and at Rockford under the cognomen of William Peary. He has a record of being a clever daylight operator, private homes being his specialty.

Searched Three Times.

When brought to the jail yesterday afternoon, Sheriff Graham stated that he had searched his prisoner three times that day and there was absolutely nothing on his person which he might use to effect an escape. He was not searched again when received here by Turnkey Phil H. Kemp as he was not thought necessary. The Turnkey placed the man in the hospital cell just above the sheriff's office and directly across the hall from the Turnkey's room the door of which was open throughout the night.

Turnkey Kemp stated today that he heard a noise in the cell this morning at two o'clock which he took to be the prisoner turning in his bed. He thought nothing of the matter and did not hear anything further until shortly before five o'clock when he went to call the prisoner to get ready for his departure for Fond du Lac, and found the cell door unlocked.

The cell door was unlocked and stood ajar, all but closed. There were no marks on the lock to indicate that it had been pried open in any way. Indications would rather show that the prisoner had successfully hidden from Sheriff Graham some sort of a key or instrument by which he might pick the lock.

Did Clever Work.

The hospital cell is the only cell in the local jail which is enclosed by iron bars which are wide enough apart to allow a man to reach his hand through. It would be impossible, say the local authorities, and in fact is self evident, that the man could open the heavy lock of the cell door with out some kind of a key or instrument with which to work.

He effected his release with the utmost quiet and care and successfully avoided awakening the Turnkey, who occupied the room across the corridor. After he had opened his cell door his escape was easy. He merely had to turn the key in the office door and he was outside. Where he then went is a matter only for conjecture. Police in neighboring cities have been notified and given descriptions of the man and his manner of working and a sharp lookout will be kept. Sheriff Graham returned to Fond du Lac this morning alone.

Sheriff Hanson stated today that if they had known that the prisoner was an expert at picking locks, he would never have been placed in the hospital cell. But the Turnkey had no intention of the man's record and thought placing him in the cell so near to his own room would be perfectly safe. The sheriff was not at the jail when the man was brought in and did not see him.

Has Been Held Before.

King, alias Peary, had operated in Janesville according to Chief of Police Appleby, who stated today that the man had been arrested in the city lock-up for vagrancy and working what is known as the "dumb and dumb game" on the local streets. King was an adept at this difficult method of deception which he worked in the private residences districts where he spotted homes to be burglarized and conducted his operations in the day time. He used this method at Fond du Lac where he made a haul of money. The reward amount of the jewelry was recovered but the authorities of Fond du Lac could not find the man because he had broken from jail and Rock county authorities are now equally anxious to secure his capture a second time. It will undoubtedly go hard with him should he be arrested after two escapes.

Was 23 Years Old.

According to the description given of King he was 23 years old. He was short, about five feet and two inches

LIE IS PASSED IN HOUSE BY GRAHAM

Representative Claims That Statement Concerning Mrs. Pierce Is Absolutely False.

PRESIDENT'S CALLER IS LANDED IN JAIL

Taken to Cell After Making Unsuccessful Attempt to See Taft at White House.

Washington, April 12.—(The lie was passed on the floor of the house today when Rep. Graham of Illinois, chairman of the committee on interior department expenditures, branded as "absolutely and unqualifiably false," the statement made yesterday by Mr. Mann, the minority leader that Mr. Graham had told Mrs. Helen Pierce Gray termed a woman lobbyist, not to return a fee proffered by an Indian agent.

The ensuing debate was intense and bitter. Mr. Mann finally demanded that Mr. Graham explain the connection of Mrs. Gray with the committee or that the committee should be made the subject of investigation.

Henry Bill Favored.

The house committee on election of president and vice president today favorably reported the Henry bill which would provide for the publicity of all contributions in campaign funds collected to advance the candidacy of the aspirants for the two highest federal offices. The vote was unanimous.

Match Bill Signed.

The president has signed the bill to tax white phosphorus matches. It is claimed the law will in effect prohibit their manufacture.

GEN. GRANT'S BODY WILL LIE IN STATE

Funeral of Gen. Frederick Dent Grant Will Be Delayed for Ten or Twelve Days.

New York, April 12.—The body of Major General Frederick Dent Grant will lie for ten days in the chapel of Congress at the Capitol, at Governor's Island, where for the last few years of his life General Grant had made his headquarters as commander of the department of the East. It was planned to remove the body there today from the Hotel Buckingham where General Grant suddenly died of heart disease yesterday morning.

The funeral of the dead soldier will be delayed ten or twelve days until the arrival of the Princess Michael Cantaguzene-Speransky from Russia. In the meantime the body will lie in state under military guard. It was announced today that General Grant would be buried at West Point. A military funeral will be held in this city.

JUDGE'S DECISION ADVERSE TO FRATS

Judge Williams of Milwaukee Decides Against Secret Societies in Public Schools.

Milwaukee, April 12.—In a decision handed down this morning Circuit Judge O. T. Williams upholds the school board in the suspension of the six east division high school girls for membership in a Greek letter society and decided the rule forbidding fraternities, societies or secret societies among pupils of the public schools is not unreasonable and is within the power of the school board. The judgment of Judge Williams has been awaited with great interest not only in Milwaukee but elsewhere and was of particular interest in cities where the anti-fraternity rule is in effect.

REBELS HARRASSING TRAINS IN MEXICO

Many Roads Delayed in Traffic and Some Stopped Entirely by Depredations of Rebels.

Washington, April 12.—Mexican rebels seem to be continuing their efforts to harassing railroad traffic, killing officials and delaying trains generally. They held up a train on the Tehuantepec railroad near Santa Lucrécia yesterday and demanded arms. The action of Yaquelt Indians in firing upon trains and the burning of a bridge on the line southwest of Guaymas Sonora has caused the complete abandonment of service on that road.

MINERS AND OPERATORS ARE SOON TO MEET IN NEW YORK

Philadelphia, April 12.—When the sub-committee of miners and operators who are trying to work out a new agreement between the anthracite mine workers and the coal companies adjourn their session today, it will be to meet in New York next Tuesday. This arrangement was made at the morning session and is believed to have some significance. A report that the committee had about reached an agreement could not be confirmed. It also was agreed to hold another meeting this afternoon. The morning session brought no change in the general situation.

EASTERN ENGINEERS PROTEST AT DELAY

Chairman of Engineers of Fifty Eastern Roads Sends Letter to Managers Asking for Haste.

New York, April 12.—The chairman of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers on fifty eastern railroads and Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the organization, awaited word today from J. C. Stuart, chairman of the general manager's association of the railroads in reply to the engineers' protest against delay in resuming further negotiations on the demands for increased pay.

Mr. Stone's letter voicing the feeling of the engineers was received today by Mr. Stuart. The engineers expect a prompt reply.

Mr. Stone's letter says: "Your letter was placed before the chairman's committee and I am directed to inform you that we cannot understand the situation. We are firmly of the opinion that the seriousness of the situation necessitates more prompt and decisive action on the part of the managers and must insist on a more explicit answer."

The foregoing letter was written in reply to one sent the engineers by Mr. Stuart yesterday afternoon in which he said it would require several days to convene the general managers' conference committee.

K. J. C. Stuart, chairman of the general managers' association of fifty eastern railroads issued a call today, for a meeting of the conference committee to be held April 17 to discuss the recent strike vote of the engineers and determine whether the railroads should make a counter proposition to their demands for increased pay.

Warren S. Stone grand chief of the brotherhood of locomotive engineers was authorized to call a strike of engineers on railroads east of Chicago and north of the Norfolk and Western railway should further negotiations for increased pay be nullified by Mr. Stuart of the call in the following letter:

"Replying to your letter of the 12th inst., relative to a more definite reply to your previous communication. The conference committee of managers will meet Wednesday April 17, and will consider your several communications which will be submitted to the committee for their consideration and action."

MARINETTE SHERIFF ABUSES AUTHORITY

A. E. Schwiltz Charged With Misconduct of Various Kinds While in Office of Sheriff.

Marinette, Wis., April 12.—Charges of misconduct in office on the part of Sheriff A. E. Schwiltz, of this county, will be presented to Governor McGovern, next Monday or Tuesday by special assistant district attorney James H. McMillan, of Green Bay. In the order of the district attorney Judge Hastings of the circuit court says among other things that Schwiltz has manifested disregard and contempt for courts and law by disregarding the judicial processes of the county, by abusing his authority, by depriving persons of their liberty unlawfully and by appropriating to his own use money which he has obtained possession of by virtue of his office belonging to other persons.

LAKE STEAMER LEAVES DULUTH WITH PROVISIONS

Duluth, Minn., April 12.—The steamer Boston will leave for Grand Marais and intermediate points with cargo and much needed provisions Sunday, weather permitting. A forty to fifty mile gale from the east has been blowing for two days breaking ice.

Provision stocks at Grand Marais, Lutzen and Tofte have been low for some time and it has been necessary to ship out on the north shores and then overland a distance of from twenty to thirty-five miles. The Boston will go as far east as Reservation River.

ARGENTINE POET GREETED AT SAN SALVADOR TODAY

H. A. BONCOUR KILLED IN AEROPLANE FALL

French Lieutenant's Body Found Among Ruins of Machine After Fall From Considerable Height.

Paris, April 12.—Lieut. M. H. A. Boncour, of the 27th Infantry regiment was killed this morning in an aeroplane accident. He was making a flight in the vicinity of Harle-Due to the department of the Meuse about 125 miles to the east of Paris, when he fell from a great height while passing over the village of Talmont.

The aeroplane collapsed from an unknown cause and was totally destroyed and the body of the aviator when found in the debris was almost unrecognizable.

An examination of the body showed that Lieut. Boncour's eye glasses were covered with frost and it is supposed that this prevented him while attempting a landing from seeing until it was too late, that he was flying directly into a thick forest. In trying to avoid crashing into the trees he probably made a sudden turning movement which caused the aeroplane to turn over. The motor was not responsible for the accident.

OPEN NEW RAILROAD TO TRAFFIC TOMORROW

Connecting Link Between Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and Western Maryland Roads Eighty-four Miles Long.

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 12.—Tomorrow is the date fixed for the opening to traffic of the new connecting link between the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie and Western Maryland railroads. The line is eighty-four miles long and has been built at a cost of nearly $25,000,000. The connection with the Western Maryland road is made at Cumberland, Md., and with the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie at Dickerson Run, Pa. The new line gives Pittsburgh a new outlet to the seaboard and a most direct route between Baltimore and Chicago. It will also open up great coal and timber fields along the Youghiogheny river.

A FORMER RESIDENT MURDERED IN RENO

Henry C. Dodge Who Was Born in Janesville, Dies in the West.

Henry C. Dodge a wealthy stock man of Reno, and a former resident of Janesville, was shot and killed there while quarreling over the possession of a horse valued at one dollar. Dodge was born on a farm close to the Milwaukee place near the State School for the Blind and will undoubtedly be remembered by many of the early residents of the Bower City.

For a number of years Dodge has made his home in the west and of late has resided in Reno where he was engaged in the importation of heavy draft horses. Dodge and a hostler in a Reno veterinary stable got into a wrangle over the ownership of a halter and when Dodge struck the man he pulled a gun and shot Dodge in the side, the bullet lodging in the back just beneath the skin.

He was hurried to the Sisters' hospital where for the first two days he showed such improvement that he finally walked out of the hospital the aid of his physicians. No sooner had he reached his room than he commenced to bleed freely internally and inside of an hour he was dead.

The man who did the shooting was immediately arrested and is now held to the grand jury. Dodge was a man of sixty-five and has two sons and a daughter who is now attending a university at Cedar Falls, Iowa. Deceased was a prominent member of the Elks, and under their auspices funeral services were held in Reno Wednesday.

CASHIER ROBBED OF BIG SUM IN CHICAGO

Young Man Loses Satchel Containing $1,970 in Currency on Way to Office.

Chicago, April 12.—Albert Kehoe, aged twenty years, cashier for the J. J. Seiler company, paper box manufacturer, was robbed today of a satchel containing $1,970 belonging to his employers, by a well dressed man at Sixteenth street and Armour avenue. Kehoe had drawn the money from a bank and was on his way to the company's office when the robbery occurred.

NEW ORLEANS MAN EYES FAMOUS STEAMER, VENUS.

New Orleans, April 12.—The steamer Venus which gained considerable notoriety during the revolution in Nicaragua two years has again changed hands. Captain S. Barlick of New Orleans, has purchased the vessel from the Costa Rican government by which it was seized at the end of the Nicaraguan revolution.

Bishop Harkins's Jubilee.

Providence, R. I., April 12.—Bishop Harkins's twenty-fifth anniversary as head of the Providence diocese will occur tomorrow, and arrangements are being made to celebrate the event with elaborate services in the Cathedral of St. Peter and Paul. Bishop Harkins is in receipt of a congratulatory message from Pope Pius X., conveying the pope's blessing to the bishop, his clergy and people.

LOUISIANA FLOODED WHEN LEVEE BREAKS

State Under Water as Result of Break in Levee—Much Damage Done.

New Orleans, April 12.—Great property damage has been wrought in north Louisiana as a result of the sudden breaking last night of the west levee of the Mississippi near Abbeville. Farmers are estimated that many lives may be claimed by the onrushing waters.

It is estimated that 800 square miles now are flooded, with property that twice that amount of territory will be inundated by night. Thousands of families will be made homeless.

The Abbeville levee and the waters from the break at Panther Park, Ark., will flood practically the entire Texas river basin, also a large section of east West Carroll, Morehouse, Madison, and Tensas parishes and a part of Richland Parish according to indications at noon.

Hundreds of families are marooned on house tops awaiting rescue. John M. Parker's plantation, where Col. Roosevelt made his headquarters during his southern tour, is under water running from 6 to 10 feet in depth. Eighteen lives are imperiled at the little town of Roosevelt, named in honor of the colonel, following its inundation.

A rescue party is now making for Roosevelt on a river steamer, hearing that during the last 24 hours the Mississippi had risen rapidly from Natchez south.

Pours Through Gaps.

Greenville, Miss., April 12.—The Mississippi is taking its title in southern Arkansas and northern Louisiana today. The flood is pouring through two gaps in the levee at Panther Parks in Arkansas and near Roosevelt, La., over fertile flat lands in the Louisiana and Arkansas delta.

Before daylight it is estimated that 1,000 square miles in east Carroll and Madison parishes, La., and Grant and Decha counties, Ark., will be flooded. In the meantime the river has passed in pause in its assault on the east banks and prospects of holding the dikes on the Mississippi side have brightened.

Loss of Life Feared.

Monroe, La., April 12.—It is feared there has been a loss of life where the Mississippi flood swept through the towns of northeast Louisiana. The breaks of the levee dike cause so many expected that thousands of persons were caught almost unprepared.

The towns of Roosevelt, Lynchville, Hesper, Enoka, Omega, Tallulah, Mansfield and Mazon are flooded. South of Tallulah a dozen more towns will be flooded within twenty-four hours.

VOTE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Citizens At Primaries Today to Name Seventy-Six Delegates to Party Conventions.—Taft Favorite.

Washington, April 12.—Over one-half of the one thousand and thirty-six delegates to the republican national convention will have been selected at the conclusion of the Pennsylvania primaries today. Statements issued from the Taft and Roosevelt headquarters here show wide divergence in the claims of the delegates up to last night.

The Taft claim is Taft, 33; Roosevelt, 112; La Follette, 26; Cummins, 1; Uninstructed, 2.

The Roosevelt claim is Roosevelt, 151; Taft 40; La Follette, 36; Cummins, 4; contested, 161; uninstructed, 106.

Where Contest Lies.

The chief difference between the rival managers are in the southern states where the Roosevelt forces had as contested all of the delegates that are claimed by Taft in Mississippi, where the delegation of twenty is claimed outright by both sides, and New York where "uninstructed" delegates are listed as "uninstructed" by the Roosevelt managers, while the Taft managers claim eighty-three of them and concede five to Roosevelt.

The six Vermont delegates claimed for Taft are held as "uninstructed" in the Roosevelt statement.

The apparent discrepancy between the Taft and Roosevelt totals is due to claims of the Roosevelt forces to the entire state of Louisiana, although most of the district conventions have not been held. The two headquarters do not agree as to the number elected in Michigan.

Democratic Situation.

At the Clark headquarters the following statement of democratic delegates was issued. For Clark, 143; Marshall, 20; Wilson, 27; Burke, 10; Uninstructed, 12.

At the Wilson headquarters an estimate of seventy-two delegates was given as the Wilson strength, including the delegation of North Dakota as second choice and the Kansas delegation after the first ballot. Claims were made public from other headquarters.

Vote in Pennsylvania.

Philadelphia, April 12.—Voters who took part today in the most important primary election since the uniform primary law was enacted in 1906, were confronted by rain. Wet weather is reported from all parts of the state.

The primary calls for the election of all parties having national tickets of candidates for delegates to their respective national conventions. The delegates will be elected by congressional districts.

There will also be elected delegates to the state convention of each party, which, in addition, will nominate presidential candidates and candidates for state offices with select twelve delegates-at-large to the national convention and four candidates for congressional districts.

Congressional Election.

In each of the thirty-two congressional districts all parties will nominate candidates for congressman. Candidates for state senator, who will participate in the election of the United States senator in 1912, when Senator Penrose's term expires, will be nominated today.

In twenty-five of the fifty senatorial districts candidates for two hundred and seven seats in the house of representatives are also in the field for election to minor party offices.

Interest in Delegates.

Chief interest in the primary is the contest for Pennsylvania's seventy-six delegates to the national convention. The republican organization is backing President Taft and it claims that the President will have a very large majority of the delegates. Roosevelt's faction claims they will elect a large number of delegates in opposition to President Taft. Colonel Roosevelt toured the state last Wednesday and Thursday.

Split in Democrats.

The democratic party is split, there being two state committees, both having delegates for Woodrow Wilson for president and their candidates have Wilson's preference attached to their name on the ballot. Candidates favoring Champ Clark are on the ballot in many congressional districts, but candidates who favor Judson Harmon are not so numerous.

ELECT DELEGATES TO ATTEND CONVENTION

Janesville Art League at Regular Meeting Last Night Named Members to Represent Them at Whitewater.

Delegates to attend the district convention of Women's Clubs to be held at Whitewater, April 23 and 24, were elected by the Janesville Art League at its regular meeting in Library hall last evening. They were Mrs. James Mills, Miss Constance Pember, and Miss Clara Brier. An excellent program has been arranged for the convention, one of the numbers being a lecture by the Rev. Benjamin Lloyd Jones on Julia Ward Howe. Papers were read at yesterday's meeting by Mrs. Suzum on "Current Events"; Mrs. Osgood, on "The Future of American Art"; Mrs. Pember, on "Theodore Robinson"; an artist who once lived near Evansville, and one by Miss Pember on "Edward Timmons," a former Janesville young man who has won for himself a name in the world of art.

Mrs. A. P. Lovejoy extended an invitation to all members of the Art League interested in woman's suffrage to meet at her home next Thursday, April 18, at eight o'clock.

The picture entitled "Planting Popcorn," recently purchased by the League from Adam Emory Albright, the artist, was hung on the walls of library hall at the close of the program. The picture is of two boys planting popcorn in early morning. It is a painting of undoubted artistic merit and will be a valuable and prized addition to the collection of the League. The meeting was very well attended.

THE REV. J. A. BERGH.

The resignation of the Rev. J. A. Bergh from the pastorate of the Luther Valley church of Rock county was accepted at a church meeting held April 11th by a vote of 51 to 52. The Rev. Bergh has been pastor of the church for thirty years, during which time he has achieved much for the growth and benefit of his congregation. He will continue to serve as pastor of the church until a committee of nine, recently appointed, determine on his successor.

Another Reason.
An amusing story is told of Edmund Keen, who, one night, played Othello with more than his usual intensity. An admirer who met him on the street next day, was loud in his congratulations: "I really thought you would choke Iago, Mr. Keen; you seemed so tremendously in earnest." "In earnest?" said the tragedian. "I should think so. Hang the fellow! He was trying to keep me out of the focus."

APRIL 13, 1912.

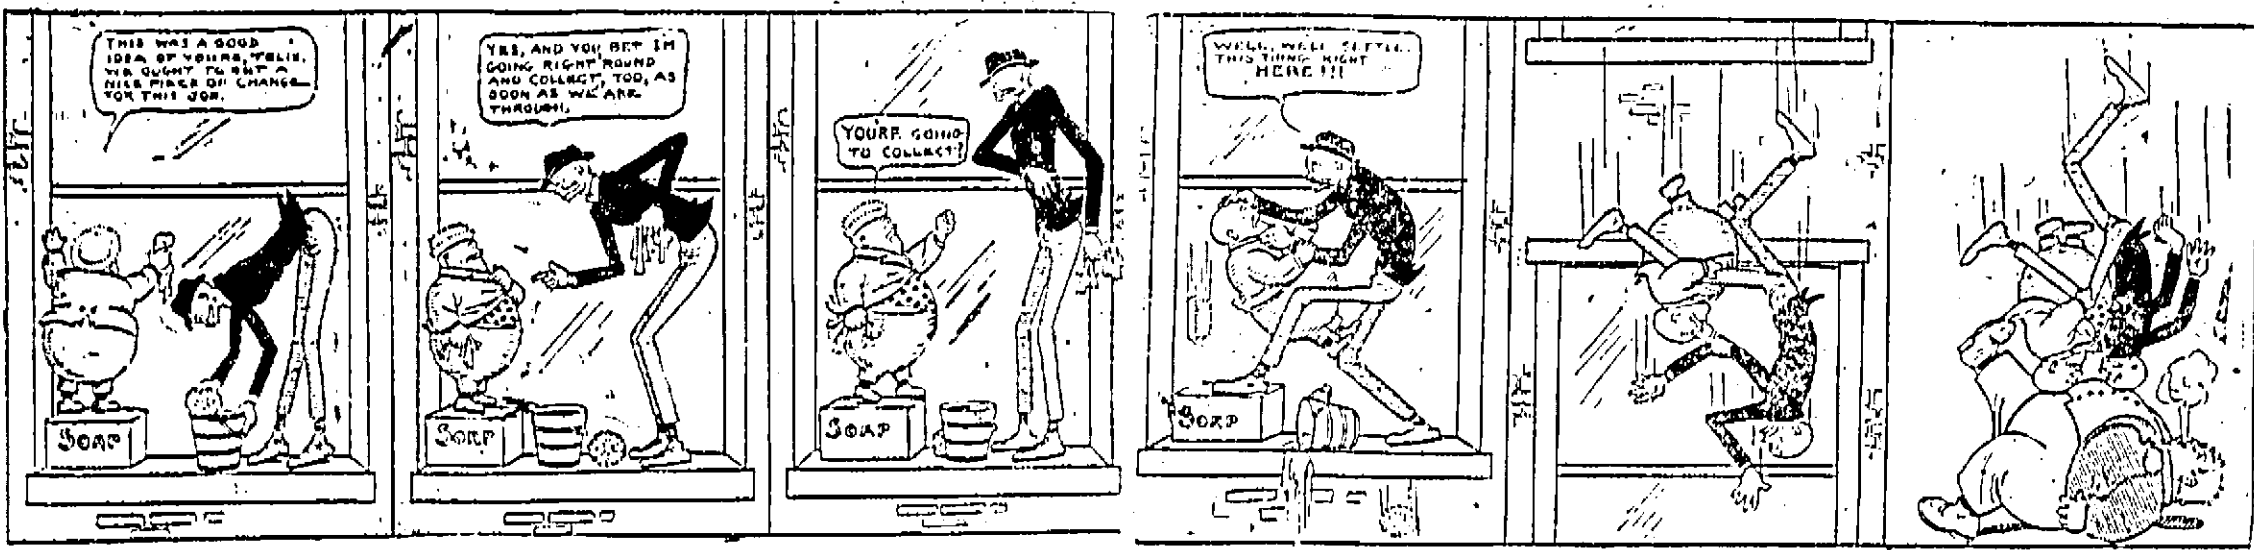

April 13, 1912.—The storm in the west has increased in strength, and has now turned northward. It is attended by a great rain area that extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Heavy rainfalls occurred during the past 24 hours at Blomberg, 1.6 inches; St. Louis, 1.46 inches; New Orleans, 1.20 inches; and Miami 1.52 inches. The temperature has not changed much, except in the southern plateau region where it is much colder, a minimum of 11 degrees being recorded in southern Utah this morning. In this vicinity the weather will continue cloudy tonight and Sunday, with some rain, possibly a thunderstorm tonight or in the morning. The winds will be brisk, or high, at first from the southwest, and later from the southwest.

Now then the childish comment goes right to the heart of a difficult problem or situation. A little boy who longed to stand on the seat of a car and look out of the window was sternly reproved by his mother. "What a 'frail-cat' mamma!" exclaimed another youngster, seated near. "Yes, I suppose she is nervous," was the adult reply. "But then, you see, she has to take care of her little boy and it keeps her busy." "Well, isn't that what she's for?" was the innocent, pertinent question.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS by DAN McCARTY

The amateur international billiard tournament lately contested in Paris the New Yorker, J. Fordham Poppenburg, was seen at his best in only one game, that with M. Labouret of France. In that game his work was of the most brilliant kind, his average being 28.57. And in describing it one of the Paris papers says:

"Mr. Poppenburg at once took the lead and did as he wished. His playing was quite different from what it was last Monday and he made breaks of 143 and 120."

"During the first part of the game M. Labouret had but few chances of scoring. After the interval, however, he made a few errors that brought him up to 69 points. From that moment Mr. Poppenburg went hard to work, making scores of 27 and 19 and finishing the game with one of 149, which he pushed to 161, the spectators cheering him heartily and asking him to go on."

"The enthusiasm was great and all the commentators agreed that they had seldom seen such good play by an amateur. M. Poppenburg's series were just as well executed as they would have been by M. Cure or M. Sassegnol, two of the best French professionals."

Bob Mohr's recent victories over Suller Burke and Jim Smith at the National Sporting Club have attracted attention to him as the man most capable of taking the measure of Frank Klaus, who is considered more or less the middleweight champion. Whether Freddie Hicks, who meets Mohr at the Madison A. C. will be as easy for Mohr to handle as his other adversaries have been, is a matter of conjecture. Hicks is no taller than Mohr and nearly as sturdy built.

Ernest Fletcher Bowen, Cornell's star stroke out, has rheumatism and has quit the rowing crew.

George Engel, manager of Frank Klaus, the Pittsburgh middleweight, said today he is perfectly willing to match Klaus against Mike Gibbons at 155 pounds, weight in at 3 p. m. and against Bob Mohr at 158, weight in at 10 o'clock.

"Klaus is not afraid to meet any legitimate middleweight," said Engel "but I will not consent to have him take on fighters who cannot make the limit, 158 pounds."

All the New York managers as well as Jack McGilgan and Philadelphia Jack O'Brien of Philadelphia were on hand to see Bob Mohr in his scrap with Freddie Hicks. After the bout, nearly every one of them declared that Mohr was not the great fighter they thought. They claimed he should have put Hicks away.

Sam Fitzpatrick, who has taken Tammy Coleman, the clever colored light middleweight of Philadelphia under his management, is another manager who is anxious to match his man against Mike Gibbons in a ten-round bout at one of the clubs. Fitz says that if Gibbons will consent to make 148 pounds at 3 p. m., he will bet Gibbons $1,000 that Coleman will be there at the end of the tenth round.

Mrs. Charles S. Haveson, widow of the late owner of the Milwaukee club, has been made treasurer of the club.

SOX NOW CHAMPIONS OF LOCAL BOWLERS

Tigers Were Defeated Last Evening and Championship Goes to Sox After Tying For First

Gridley, Mead, G. Baumann, Fleese and McDonald compose the champion bowling team of the city. These men, under the name of the "Sox" defeated the Tigers last night, taking two out of three games and deciding the tie for first place in the tournament. "Through-out the match the teams bowled up to their best form and it was only by superior work on the part of the Sox that they were successful. Next week the banquet is planned to be held and the season of 1911-12 closed with fitting ceremonies."

Last night's match was witnessed by the ladies who were invited to see the two teams end up the season and decide which should have the championship of the league for the past season. A good-sized crowd was present and the exciting match was played on with probably the largest crowd which has been there this year.

McDonald was high man of the evening, making a score of 187 in the first game. Gridley and Fleese came closely after him with scores of 182 and 183 respectively. Beside having the high score McDonald also made the best average for the three games, 177.

Last night's scores were bowled as follows:

CLUB MEN DISCUSS MORALS OF PUBLIC

Presbyterian Brotherhood Holds Interesting Meeting on Subject of Morals of Community.

Members of the Presbyterian Men's Club held their monthly meeting at the church last evening for the discussion of "The Citizen and Public Morals." After supper had been enjoyed by the club and the question of ladies' night referred to the standing committee, the toastmaster called upon Dr. Cunningham, who spoke on the subject of the citizen's relation to public health.

He explained during his remarks the trouble with which the city of Janesville has to deal, no matter how large and efficient they may be. He also mentioned the different ways in which the individual citizen may help the general health of the community, cleaning his yard, taking care of his garbage and outbuildings, as well as to report every case of contagious disease in the community.

P. J. Holt, in speaking on the question of woman suffrage, brought out the condition which favored the granting of the ballot and pointed out the manner in which the women might solve the great problems of the government today if given the right to vote.

"The Christian Man in Business" was the subject of a strong talk given by J. A. Craig. He advanced the wish that business men should seek to run their affairs in a straight manner, rather than to exploit the weaknesses of the politicians who are always seeking to tear down rather than to build up. Though the existence of these pretended reformers may not be known by the outsiders, they are today endangering the very foundation of business enterprise in the country, and the results will become evident very soon if their efforts continue as successfully as they have. He also showed how the great corporations are practically necessary to the welfare of the people and that their destruction would be a detriment to the people. At this point he spoke of the support given a Janesville concern during the panic by the much abused Steel Corporation. In his opinion the Standard Oil company was doing a great deal to supply the lack of coal fields in Wisconsin.

At the conclusion of the speeches the club discussed the thoughts put forward during the evening and questioned the speakers on other points not mentioned.

THE IMPERIAL—BEST BUY On The Market

All the special features of the Imperial combine into one great result, making Imperial Automobiles Winners. We've been in only five endurance contests, winning four firsts and one second. It is these very features that give our cars class and quality. They make it the satisfactory car for you to use. It always gets there and back. It is those features of construction combined with superior workmanship that make every Imperial user lean from his car to whisper to his neighbor that it is the best automobile in the world. Good material cannot overcome poor construction, nor can good construction overcome poor material, but when we use the finest construction in the world and material selected from the most perfect stock, we combine the features that makes it the automobile you ought to have and one that will stand up under most severe use. That is why we won right here in our own state of Wisconsin in the State Endurance run, taking both trophies and the Sweepstakes. It was the hardest run ever made under the A. A. A. rules and we won. This means something to you. Interesting literature on request.

Mrs. Amanda Broughton of this city, who passed away at his home in Rockford last week, was one of the prominent physicians of this region. He was the proprietor of the Broughton sanitarium and he himself was a specialist in the treatment of nervous diseases. He sympathized broadly with those who had become victims of the drug and liquor habits, and patients came to him from all parts of the country, finding in him a haven of rest and comfort while they overcame the disease which had brought them low.

In speaking of Dr. Broughton the Rockford Morning Star says: "Dr. Broughton was big in ideas and purpose and big in deeds. He could not be little as he was broad of mind and large of heart. His patients were not merely patients, but friends, companions on the voyage, whom he loved and for whose betterment he toiled and hoped and prayed. He believed in the brotherhood of man and saw in the suffering and lowly brothers who had left the narrow path and he never ceased to harken them back. His life was a success because it was well ordered, for he lived for others and not merely for himself.

The Home Beautiful

An appearance of solidity is a desirable essential in a home. This design has this appearance and lends itself readily to the most elaborate scheme of landscape gardening. While this picture is attractive even without the shade trees and shrubbery, which were necessarily left out to show the building in detail, when surrounded by spreading shade trees and shrubbery it is really a picture. Trees sufficiently large to be useful for shade can be transplanted and the appearance of barrenness usually surrounding a new building dispensed with. This house with the wide porch and the excellent light arrangement makes an ideal country home, and is sufficiently large for the ordinary family's requirements.

One and one-half story frame cottage, size 33 feet 6 inches by 35 feet over all, including veranda. Concrete block foundation with stained shingle roof. Economical and comfortable and can be built very conveniently as required to accommodate conditions. Stories: first 9 feet; second 8 feet. Cellular under entire house. This house is roofed like a bungalow. Exterior clapboard and stained brown. The house is trimmed in white. Should be built at a cost not to exceed $2,800 to $3,000.

WOMAN'S PAGE

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

Is the Business Woman a Good Home-Maker?

THE charge is often made that business and professional life is unfitting women to be home-makers. The downfall of the home is blamed upon woman's invasion of business, and the woman who owns her living is looked at askance as having lost all taste for the domestic sphere.

But if you look into the matter a little deeply, are these charges true? Aren't there some things underneath the surface of this charge in woman's life that are worth considering?

Does not the woman who spends her days in a store or office or making an exhausting round of professional calls appreciate a home more than the woman who lives at home day in and out? Has she not the same appreciation of it that the business man has?

And like the business man, she knows after a day of hard work, what is most wanted in a home. Few things open a woman's eyes to the real essentials of a home like returning to it at night exhausted from a day's work in the world. She appreciates, as no home woman can, what it means to find order and comfort and cheer and rest waiting for her. To stop from the rushing, wearing world of work into a haven of peace where there is no unkind word, where every taste and wish of the worker have been considered, is to find a home in its truest sense. And nobody comprehends this better than the business woman. The woman who has never had an experience in the business world cannot understand how much this means.

And if you know thorough-going business women, you will find that the majority of them have turned their room or two rooms, as the case may be, into as near a resemblance of a home as they can get. They have made their apartments as cozy and comfortable and home-like as possible. They have pictures and flowers and dainty curtains, and possibly a little tea-table and chaffing dish. The domestic instinct in them has expressed itself as much as it can. It hasn't died out.

And not only does a business woman or professional woman appreciate a home, but her business experience has given her the ability to manage a home. And by a business woman is meant the capable woman who handles whatever may be her work thoroughly. The careless, thoughtless girl who half performs her duties, and whose mind is on something other than her tasks will make no more of a success of housework than she does of anything else. But the capable business woman will bring to the task of managing a home, executive ability and big grasp of things. She can see the whole at a glance and quickly decide how the various parts must fit into it. She goes at housekeeping in a businesslike way. She is not bound by traditions or conventions, but goes about her work in the most efficient way to accomplish the end desired. She would run a house in the same thorough-going fashion that she would run a department. She would cut out useless work and poor tools. She would look at the job ahead of her with an eye trained by modern business methods. And in her hands, housekeeping would become a different proposition from what it has been in the past.

So that instead of business or professional life spoiling a woman for the domestic sphere, it really makes her better fitted for it. If she cares to take it up. And it is the trained business or professional woman who will lift housekeeping to a level where much if not all of its old-time drudgery and monotony will be left behind.

Barbara Boyd.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE more I look at the faces about me—and I never take a ride on the trolley car or walk on the city streets without studying faces—the more it is borne in upon me that beauty and the lack of it is a matter of expression more than of form or coloring.

When a young girl reads something like the above statement in a talk like mine, or hears it from an older woman who almost always turns up her nose mentally, and thinks to herself: "I'm, that sounds all right, but it doesn't work out in real life." And if she is plain, she goes on envying the girl with the regular features and fine complexion; or if she is pretty, in the ordinary sense of the word, takes a satisfied look at herself in the mirror. You see, I know, because I've been there myself.

But, girls, we are all wrong—you and I. That isn't just newspaper morality talk. It's true. Nothing on earth mars a face more quickly than an unpleasant expression. Nothing makes us turn away offended more than a cast of features made disagreeable, not by the modeling of nature, but by the thoughts and character of the possessor.

You know the woman who cannot talk without a sneer on her lips. No matter what she speaks of, that sneer comes and goes, disfiguring what might be a pretty face. Don't you dislike to look at her? I'm sure I do.

Then there is the face with the dissatisfied, discontented mouth, and the face marked and marred by sourness, and the features defaced by an ugly frown between the eyes.

Suppose anyone of these faces to be fitted with Grecian features and a perfect complexion. Will you love to look at it? Indeed, no.

The other day I saw a woman with large, irregular features, scraggly brows, thin straight hair, and a slight hump on the upper lip. And yet, those unattractive features were illumined by such a happy, cheerful, lively expression that I truly enjoyed looking at that woman more than at the pretty but characterless young face beside her.

A face that is illumined by cheerfulness, or transfigured by intelligence and interest in life, or lit up by the wonderful steady light of an inward peace and serenity, cannot be plain.

You may still think this is just newspaper morality talk, but if you will only study the faces about you I am sure that some day you will come to realize it is much more than that.

Heart and Home Problems

by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

So many questions are coming in that I find it impossible to answer all in this department, so if those who have personal questions which are of interest to themselves alone, will send me in each case a stamped envelope, I shall be glad to answer direct.

M. M.—The book containing the poems you mention is not to be found in the libraries.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of nineteen years, and expect to go abroad in May. How should I dress on the steamer? (2) Kindly tell me how to get thin.

E. C.

(1) A simple becoming suit, one or two silk waists and a number of tailored waists form the essential wardrobe for traveling. (2) The best way to get thin, if you weigh too much, is to be careful about your diet, omitting sweet and fat and starchy foods, and by getting plenty of outdoor air and exercise. Walking from three to five miles a day is recommended.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Will you please publish a recipe for (1) A soft gingerbread. (2) Potato salad, not too expensive.

JENNIE.

(1) One cup molasses, one-half cup boiling water, two and one-fourth cups flour, one teaspoon soda, one and one-half teaspoons ginger. One-half teaspoon salt, four tablespoons melted butter. Add water to molasses. Mix and sift dry ingredients, combine molasses, add butter and beat vigorously. Pour into shallow buttered pan and bake twenty-five minutes in moderate oven. (2) If you will send me a stamp addressed envelope I can give you in detail a recipe for good potato salad.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please tell me if it is customary to give a young man a birthday present when a party is given. If so, please tell me a few gifts that would be suitable for a young man of sixteen. L. G.

If you know the young man very well and others are giving gifts, it would be proper for you to do so, too, or you might join others in giving him something. Books are always in good taste.

USES OF BUTTERMILK.

Buttermilk, according to some authorities, is the cure-all for nearly all diseases. It is certainly a wholesome drink and is agreeable to most palates.

Buttermilk Pie.—To a cupful of buttermilk add two tablespoonfuls of flour and half a cupful of sugar; mix the flour and sugar together, add a beaten egg and a flavoring of lemon extract. Bake in a crust without a cover.

Buttermilk Sweet Cake.—Add a tablespoonful of molasses to a cup of buttermilk, a teaspoonful of soda and three tablespoonfuls of melted lard. Beat an egg and add to the mixture, with spices to taste and flour enough to make a soft dough. Bake in a loaf and cover with a brown sugar frosting.

Steamed Brown Bread.—Take a cupful each of rye meal, Indian meal and graham flour, two cupfuls of buttermilk, three quarters of a teaspoon of soda, one teaspoonful of salt and three-quarters of a cup of molasses. Mix all ingredients together, pour into buttered baking powder cans and steam for three hours. Dry off in the oven, removing the covers from the cans.

Corn Muffins.—Put two cupfuls of cornmeal into a basin, add a cupful of flour, half a cup of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter and one beaten egg. Add two cupfuls of buttermilk, in which a teaspoon of soda has been dissolved. Mix and put into muffin pans to bake.

Johnny Cake.—Take two cups of buttermilk, one cup of cornmeal, one cup of flour, one-half cup of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of soda and half a teaspoonful of salt. Add the milk to the meal and soak for an hour; add sugar, soda and salt, mix with the flour and pour out in a shallow greased baking pan. Bake in a quick oven.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING

History As Read in the China Closet

—Plates and Cups.

(By Alice E. Whitaker.)

Our foremothers started housekeeping with "a set of dishes" which was expected to last many years. If she had the rare good fortune to own a company set this must surely last during her life time and pass intact to her descendants.

In after years many such sets were divided among grand daughters and their children until now many of these pieces are resting on plate racks or cabinet shelves. Several such plates are in my possession beginning with great grandmothers deep blue Shepherdess plate.

Next comes the green and white of one grandmother and the willow ware of the other, the gold banded dishes of my mother and last my own Canton ware from which no other china can alternate me. Tracing back the other line of ancestry first comes the narrow gold banded plate of my mother-in-law then the lavender sprinkled cake plate of her older sister and last the pale blue and white plate that was her mother's and which corresponds to the green and white of my grandmother's set.

These plates are very light to handle but have not such beauty of color as that peculiar deep blue that was the universal china of a hundred years ago, unless the housewife was fortunate enough to have a set of what was erroneously called India china.

This was given to the blue and white china that was brought to this country by ships sent out to India but which stopped at China for a cargo of dishes.

It was this Canton ware that Martha Washington used on her family table. Pieces of old Canton are valued more than the recently made as a certain transparency of color is missing in much of the fresh importations.

The housewife of a century ago could not replace a broken piece by stepping into a ten cent store and she cherished carefully what she had. In those days a well balanced woman was aptly described as "a mistress of herself, the China girl."

My humble collection, which also includes a bit of copper butter, is quite commonplace as it has no cherished Lowestoft or Wedgwood, nor rare pieces of historical design but it simply illustrates the succession of dishes that was used in our family from 1800 to the present time.

Dinner Stories

Paul J. Ratney, whose big game hunt in Africa has made him the champion lion slayer of the world, was asked in an interview a question about the habits of lions.

"I can't answer that," the young millionaire said with a smile. "and I don't pretend I can. Why should I imitate the scientific lecturer?"

"As a scientific lecturer, at the conclusion of a lecture of the most abstract description, took a sip of water and said:

"Question time. If any one now has any question of a scientific nature to ask I shall be glad to answer it to the best of my ability."

"An old lady in a plaid shawl rose and said:

"Will you please tell me why it is, sir, that wet tea leaves kill roaches?"

"The lecturer knew no more than Adam why wet leaves killed roaches but not to be humiliated he answered glibly:

"When a roach, madame, sees a wet tea leaf he exclaims: 'Hello here's a blanket!' and he wraps himself up in it, falls asleep and naturally catches a severe cold, which, developing into

TALKS with our WOMEN READERS

Edna K. Woolley

"Women don't know how to clean house," said the stocky man.

"This spring, when my wife began to talk housecleaning and get that worried pucker between her eyebrows, I said to her—

"My dear," said I, "you let me boss this housecleaning job this time. I'll promise you it's to be done in a quarter of the time it usually takes, and we'll all be happy while the work goes on. And what's more," says I, "I'll be on the job myself and see that things are properly done."

"She looked kind of skeptical," chuckled the stocky man, "but as she knows it's not my habit to promise anything unless I'm pretty sure of making good, she told me to go ahead and do my worst. She did it with a kind of triumphant air, as if she thought she had me.

"Now, we have a six-room flat and don't keep a maid. I suppose my wife thought I'd hire a regiment to come in and do up things in a hurry and spend a lot of money. I know she looked like that when she sat down and folded her hands and shut her lips close together.

"But I didn't do anything of the kind. No sir! I knew a better way.

"I arranged to take a half day off at the office. To beat time? Not on your life! I've served my time at rag-baiting. No more of that for me. Besides, it's unsanitary and ruins the rugs. I rented a vacuum cleaner, and I got the kind with a hose attachment.

"The first thing I did when I got home, was to put on my old clothes. My wife had all the closets cleaned out, as per instructions. I took that vacuum cleaner and ran the hose through all the closets, up and down the walls, around the backs of the pictures, over the upholstered furniture, the portieres and wherever there was any dust to be sucked up.

"Then I cleaned the carpets with the sweeper and rolled them up so the floors could be washed.

"That took about a couple of hours. Meanwhile my wife was washing the china and bric-a-brac and such in the kitchen—wearing rubber gloves, by the way, so she wouldn't ruin her hands. I wore a pair of old leather gloves, for I think something of my skin, too.

"After cleaning up the dust in the flat I brightened up the windows with a horserose solution and plenty of old newspapers. That took another hour. After that I put on a pair of knickerbockers I'd previously made and I got down on my prayerfulness and scrubbed that flat from the front door to the rear and rimmed off the back porch. That took two more hours.

"There was all the hard work done in five hours. The house was thoroughly cleaned, including the portieres and their contents, which my wife had attended to. All that remained was to put up the laundered curtains, send our winter woollens, et cetera, to the cleaners, and then pack them away for the summer, all of which could be done without upsetting the regular regime.

"If I'd hired a woman to come in and do what I did it would have taken her a week. She wouldn't have used her brain matter to the best advantage, and she wouldn't have been strong enough to do it as I did. A hired man wouldn't have shown the same interest that I did for myself, either. And the best of it was that my wife and I actually enjoyed the whole thing. We had more than one laugh, and we kept up a running conversation that made us forget how hard we were working.

"It's working alone that's more of a hardship than anything, anyway."

DON'T BE DECEIVED

Newbro's Herpicide is the Only Original Remedy.

Just because you happen to see or hear the statement somewhere that another preparation will kill the dandruff germ, stop falling hair and is just as good as Herpicide, don't be fooled and allow yourself to be swindled out of your money.

You want Newbro's Herpicide, the remedy that has been tried, has stood the test of time and now has more satisfied users than all other similar preparations combined. An attempt to sell you something else is merely another effort to profit from the good name established by the only genuine dandruff germ destroyer. Herpicide kills the dandruff germ, and prevents falling hair. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly. It may be claimed that other hair remedies will do the same things, but Herpicide really does them. Its years of success prove this.

Send 10c in postage or silver for sample and booklet to The Herpicide Co., Dept. H, Detroit, Mich. All applications will be obtained at good barber shops. J. P. Baker is special agent for Janesville. One dollar size bottles are guaranteed.

"I am sorry that this is the subject on which I have no information."

"Fighting Rob Evans," said a naval veteran of Washington, "had like most fighters, a tender heart."

"Fighting Rob" had a specially tender heart toward children. I once heard him say, as he held his little grandchild's hand:

"A child is the biggest thing in the world. A rugged, emaciated, hungry child is to me bigger than a battleship."

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

OPENING OF THE ERIE CANAL.

By A. W. MACY.

It was a great day when the Erie canal was opened for traffic on October 26, 1825. That was two years before the first railroad was built in this country, and the canal was the most stupendous public work that had yet been undertaken. The idea was conceived by Gouverneur Morris in 1800. It was strenuously advocated by a few prominent men, and was vigorously opposed by others. Work was not begun till July 4, 1817, at which time ground was broken at Rome, N. Y., in eight years it was completed. opening artificial communication for 428 miles an unbroken passage from Lake Erie to tide water in the Hudson. The opening was celebrated by a telegraphic discharge of cannon, commencing at Lake Erie, and continued along the banks of the canal and of the Hudson, announcing to the city of New York the entrance on the bosom of the canal of the first barge that was to arrive at the commercial emporium from the American Mediterranean. Governor Clinton and other noted public men were on this barge, and their voyage down the canal was a triumphal procession.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

NO SPECIAL VIRTUE IN "GREENS."

The advice to "eat a little green stuff every day" is probably based on the observation that sailors long confined to a diet of salt pork and bread, without fresh fruits or green vegetables, often develop scurvy and quickly recover when they reach land, where they get fresh vegetables and fruits. It is not, however, the absence of cabbage or onions or turnips in the ration, but the salt pork that causes scurvy. For several years I have maintained perfect health without tasting green vegetables or any fruit but apple. There is no evidence to support the theory that the green coloring matter of plants has any use in the animal economy, and there is no element of nutrition in cabbage or spinach which cannot be more easily assimilated from buttermilk, and none which is not contained in entire wheat or unpolished rice. The fact that men have lived well in prisons for many years on coarse bread and water and that European peasantry attain great age on bread chiefly is alone sufficient to prove that the theory of great variety of food is wrong or that "greens" have any special virtue.

Beware of Staleness.

Because you have done it for forty years is probably the best excuse for changing your method.

So Far and Have Some Good
Plans for Future.

Janesville's Boy Scouts are sadly in need of increased interest and attention on the part of the parents and business men and citizens in general. They and the men who are in charge of the movement here, need encouragement. This is clearly the conclusion after a review of the work done by the Scouts during the past ten months.

"During the past winter it has been impossible to arouse the interest already been accomplished. "The scoutmaster could not push the boys too much for fear they would interfere with their school duties. Furthermore we have had no regular time of meeting and consequently the boys did not know the exact afternoon or evening to be on hand. The reason for this is that we have had the use of the Spanish War Veterans' Hall and had to accommodate ourselves to the convenience of other lodges which use the place on various nights.

"What we have done is a place where we could meet regularly and be sure of having the place reserved for us on the date set. I believe the link would be an ideal place providing arrangements could be made for it on certain nights each month."

Since the end of last summer there has been little increase in the number of Scouts enrolled in the Janesville order. The total number of Scouts now on the list is about eighty at present. However, it is stated by the Scoutmaster, that if a campaign were started for an increased membership at this time, there is little doubt but and Cookout, can devote only a very small part of their time to the work. They can only meet the boys in the evenings or late in the afternoon, which may be all that is required while the boys are still in school, but this will not prove to be sufficient attention for the summer months when the boys will have their entire time to themselves. It is at such seasons, when time hangs heavy on the scoutmaster's shoulders, that he should have the training and direction of the Scoutmasters and the Scout leaders.

It was pointed out by the Scoutmaster recently that the Janesville scouts at this time needed the attention of a competent man for the summer vacation—someone who could give his entire time to the work and who could organize the boys effectively to work out the ideals of the scout movement. In fact it has been stated that the only salvation for the local scouts would be in the securing of such a man who would be willing to work with the boys for three months to perfect the movement in its largest meaning.

It is possible that this suggestion would mean the raising of a small amount of money. Enough to pay the person who would take hold of the work for his time and services. The question arises would the Janesville business men, or the parents of children who are interested in the scout movement, would they come forward to pledge the financial support which would be required?

It isn't a matter of proving the value of the Boy Scouts' organization. The scoutmasters and Mr. Jacke, especially, are certain of the good which has been done, and are even more confident of the good which may be accomplished with a more efficient organization. It is pointed out that for this summer only, would a scoutmaster be needed, who would give his entire time to the work. Hereafter the boys would be able to go ahead with the work themselves with merely the direction of the scoutmasters as they are now working.

The person who would naturally be most competent to take charge of the Janesville scouts this summer, would be one of the men who has been earnestly identified with the movement and one who could command the respect and confidence of the boys and likewise their parents. The expense would be small compared with the results obtained.

In commenting on the work which such a scoutmaster would necessarily have to do, Capt. Jacke said: "Undoubtedly the best thing for the Janesville scouts this summer would be the establishment of a summer camp at some convenient place near the city. All the boys that could possibly do so, when they are not required for work by their parents or for other duties, should make the scout camp their headquarters and act under the orders of the scoutmaster in charge. Here special trips to surrounding towns or points of interest would be planned and everything done would be under the usual scout discipline and order. The number of things which might be worked out for the boys is almost inexhaustible. It might include: cross-country trips, signal practice, map drawing, camp drill, scouting, canoeing, first aid to the injured; swimming, always under the direction and supervision of the scoutmaster; and many others."

In regard to the summer camp the following item from the Boy Scout bulletin will be of interest. "There will be at least 4,000 camps of boy scouts in this country this summer. These figures were obtained from reports sent in to James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, by various scoutmasters. Four thousand scoutmasters have said that they are going to take the boys camping. It is quite probable that the number will be still greater."

"The information received at the national headquarters shows how eager hundreds of thousands of boys are for camp life. They are planning for the summer fun. Many boys who are poor have been handling together throughout the winter to earn money with which to pay the expenses of their outing. Scout troops have a common fund into which the money is poured. Accordingly the boys are trained to be thrifty, while they are having plenty of fun."

"The plans of the scoutmasters for giving the boys much bodily training in scouting are much more detailed than last summer. While the boys up to the present have confined themselves to learning principles of camping, outdoors, signaling, swimming, rowing and a few other activities, the work this summer will be much more extensive, and give the boys a better physical and mental training. For this purpose the leaders of the scout movement have turned out a scoutmaster's manual, a proof copy of which is being sent to every scoutmaster in the country. The new book contains programs of work for the scouts and goes in detail into the methods of handling boys. It provides many lines of activity and it was worked out by Professor Irving Vinberg and George H. Merrill under the direction of the editorial board. The new book gives instruction in knowing, throwing the lasso, camping, signaling, first-aid, wig, signaling, boxing, the compass, map making, first aid and various other activities."

In speaking concerning the objections which many people have concerning the military character of the Boy Scouts' organization, Capt. Jacke said: "I believe that the parents need have no fear of the Boy Scout movement on this grounds. In fact I am certain that if the scout organization is carried on as it should be, it will effectively drive out the notion and desire for things tending of the soldier life. The scout discipline and the scout regulations are just rigorous enough to show them what real army life would be."

"One of the valuable things which the scout movement teaches the boys," continued Capt. Jacke, "is discipline. The boys learn to respect their elders, not only at home under their father or mother's watchful eye, but everywhere, on the street, at school, and at home, at all times. Whether anyone notices or not. And they learn this in such a way that they like to learn it. They learn it in a way which appeals to their dramatic instincts. It is possible for the scoutmaster to do this if he can spend considerable time with the boys, because he will always be consistent and treat each boy alike as far as the discipline side is concerned. "Then the boys will learn to respect one another and regard one another's rights and privileges. But in addition they will be physically benefited in an uncertain way. Each boy that joins the scouts must be measured and a record kept. After six months measurements are taken again and the improvement is noted. The boys should be added in every possible manner to remedy their own various weaknesses and special exercises and drills will be prescribed for the different boys."

Capt. Jacke went on to tell how this had already been done as far as possible with the local scouts and told of boys who had rounded shoulders and sunken chests who were started on the right way toward a straighter, rounder body. The valuable lessons taught the scouts through the discipline side of the organization cannot be emphasized too much, but they are not all of the advantage which accrue to the young minds and bodies which are so anxious to learn the secrets of a scoutcraft. One has only to talk for a short time with Scoutmasters Jacke or Cookout, to become converted, heart and soul, to this distinctly boys' organization for the benefit and development of boys along the lines of boy interests and boy activities."

SHOULD TEST CORN BEFORE SKELLING

Prof. C. P. Norgard Gives Advice Regarding Seed Corn Which Shows Poor Germination Qualities.

Seed corn in this state and of the corn belt in general, is in a most serious condition, according to Prof. C. P. Norgard, of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture. One hundred and forty-nine samples that have been collected from seven counties for test, from all parts of the state, have shown an average germination of only 57 per cent. If this corn is planted without testing, a half crop will result. This will be especially serious next fall, as the same situation prevails over the entire corn belt. One man in southwestern Wisconsin cut fifty bushels of fine looking corn in his seed corn room. He shelled it and tested it this spring. Twenty-five bushels of one variety showed only 17 per cent live kernels, while the other variety germinated 35 per cent. If he had tested it ear by ear, he could now discard the bad ears, but having shelled it before testing, it is practically a loss. Next season will see a shortage of corn and high prices which will compel stock growers to glut the market with immature stock. We of Wisconsin must not be caught. The way of escape is clear. We must test every ear of our seed corn and discard every one that does not germinate strongly. We must not shell the corn before testing, because then we cannot throw out the bad kernels. One man can test several bushels in a day and every one should do it for corn will be valuable next year.

Remove a kernel from near the butt, another from near the center, and another from near the tip. Turn the ear over, and repeat the operation. In this way you have representatives from six different rows and from different parts of the ear.

The simplest way to test seed corn is to use what is known as the new test method. But about two inches of sawdust that has been boiled in a sack, in the bottom of a dry goods box. Push this down thoroughly and spread over it a piece of muslin that has been marked into 2 1/2 inch squares. There should be at least ten rows of ten squares in a row. Each square is used for kernels from one ear of corn. It is usually most convenient to test 100 ears at a time. When the squares are marked on the muslin they should be numbered, beginning at the upper left hand corner. The ears should then be spread upon the floor or upon the table and numbered. Kernels from ear No. 1 are to be put in square No. 1 and so on. It is not necessary to attach a number to each ear. If the ears be laid out in rows, ear No. 1 can be marked and a nail driven into the floor between each 10 ears. This will make it possible to determine the number of the ears.

After the kernels have been placed in the germinator, cover them carefully with another piece of muslin that has been dampened. Over this place a gunny sack with wet sawdust in it. In six or seven days check up the results and discard all ears whose kernels failed to produce strong sprouts.

NEW GLARUS

New Glarus, April 12.—People around here are kept busy these days with their income tax blanks.

Gottlieb Kammer proprietor of the Corner Exchange had business in Madison on Thursday.

Messrs. Andrew Hvesly, William Eichelkraut, Peter Ott, J. J. Fiel and Fred Blum enjoyed an auto ride to Monticello on Thursday. The roads are not in the best of shape as yet but we hope that the split log drag will find its way over them before rain comes.

BACK COVERED WITH MASS OF PIMPLES

Burned and Itched So He Could Hardly Stand It. Tried Medicines, Etc., Nearly 3 Years. In Eternal Misery. Started Using Cuticura Remedies. Now Has No Sign of Skin Disease.

"My trouble began along in the summer in the hottest weather and took the form of small eruptions and itching and a kind of smarting pain. It took me mostly all over my back and kept getting worse until finally my back was covered with a mass of pimples which would burn and itch at night so that I could hardly stand it. This condition kept getting worse and worse until my back was a solid mass of big sores which would break open and run. My underclothing would be a lot of blood."

"I tried various blood medicines and other remedies and saved for nearly three years and I was not getting any benefit. It seemed I was in eternal misery and could not sleep on my back or lean back on a chair. I was finally given a set of the Cuticura Remedies by my brother who recommended them to me very highly. I started using the Cuticura Remedies and inside of two weeks I could see and feel a great relief. I kept on using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and also the Resolvent, and in about three or four months' time my back was nearly cured and I felt like a new being. Now I am in good health and my skin is as smooth as ever and I am fully satisfied that Cuticura Remedies are the best ever made for skin diseases. I will always recommend them to anybody who will use according to directions. I would not be without them." (Signed) W. A. Armstrong, Cobin, Kan., May 26, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp of infants, children and adults. Although sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world, a liberal sample of each, with 22-p. book on the skin, will be sent free, on application to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 27A, Boston.

Did You Ever See a Book About Municipal Bonds?

One in Such Plain Simple Every-Day Language that Everyone Who Is "Of Age" Understands and is Interested? A Book That the Experienced Financier and the High-School Boy—The Matron and the Young Heiress—All Read Again and Again?

A BOOK that people want to Read and Keep for future reference?

We are presenting such a book to everyone who has to consider the investing of money—either in small or large sums.

The book is written from a strictly "information giving" standpoint—just as a History is written. And is designed wholly to give a clear, simple understanding of a subject that has heretofore been so smothered in technical financial language that only the trained financier could grasp its meaning.

A "Bond" has meant to many people something hard to understand, and only to be handled by the very wealthy. A "Bond" is actually the simplest of subjects, and is the one suitable investment to be considered by those who have not time or do not care to devote attention to the annoyance of managing changing business deals. We offer this book to you with our compliments.

MATRIMONY AT COYOTE CITY

By ROBERT C. McELRAVY

I HAD been roaming about for a period of six weeks in the high cattle country of Colorado and Wyoming, by way of a vacation trip, when one evening I turned Bronco Jim's nose on to the trail leading to Coyote City. The sun had dropped behind its far horizon, leaving the western heavens streaked with variegated hues of red, and the lights of the town were beginning to flicker as I rode down Main street.

After seeing Jim safely quartered for the night, I brushed some of the dust from my clothing and went out to survey the place. It was quiet and respectable, lacking all the romantic aspect which is generally found in a cattle town, and I was at a loss to account for the condition of affairs. The streets were crowded with people, who strolled about leisurely, and from the array of pretty women, and well-dressed men, it might have been a concert evening back in some Iowa town.

My perplexed rambles led me into the Broadway grill, where I ordered a substantial meal; and from there I went to the Blue Bird Hotel, where I expected to put up for a low to account for the condition of affairs. The streets were crowded with people, who strolled about leisurely, and from the array of pretty women, and well-dressed men, it might have been a concert evening back in some Iowa town.

We fell into an informal conversation at a rear table, both being lone some, and glad to find company.

"Quiet tonight, isn't it?" I remarked, not hearing too strongly upon the question, but nevertheless desiring an answer in point.

Lariat stretched his giant frame and said, "Yep." Then he looked me over languidly, and added, "It's pretty quiet here most of the time, stranger."

"Seems to be quite a well-populated little city," I observed. "I noticed one remarkable thing about the place early this evening. That was the large number of handsome women being escorted about the streets."

"Right you be," said Lariat, draining his glass and thoroughly arousing himself. Then he entered into negotiations with the bartender, and settled back to tell his story.

"You see, stranger, it ain't always been this way. Five years ago this very burrow was chuck full of rip-roarin' humanity every night of the week. In them days we had the liveliest bunch of bucks you ever seen in one small city. That was shootin', gamblin' an' carousin' sufficient to please the most sprightly, an' ef you war lookin' for trouble, either genuine or assumed, you could be accommodated very sudden. It wasn't quiet an' lone some in them days of gladness like it is now."

I sighed dolefully and ran a rough hand regretfully through his heavy black hair. He revolved in his memory before continuing.

"As I say, it war about five years ago thet Coyote City begun takin' on respectability. It war just noticeable arter a wild time one evening over at Chicago Hill's place, when two of the best fellers in the camp popped each other off in a drunken row. That war the slightest excuse for the fracas, but the result war just as bad; an' the sight of them poor lads stretched out stark dead on th' bar-room floor sort of throwed a wet blanket over the community for some time. Arter that the booze didn't flow freely for some little while, an' most of the boys begun behavin' powerful decent.

"It war about that time, I believe, that President Roosevelt came across with that talk of his about race suicide. Teddy havin' rid the plains, his observations had considerable weight with the boys.

"Yank Sterling, Rubs Smithers, Bonanza Hill, Panhandle Rogers, myself, an' a bunch of what had always been regarded as the worst sperits, got together one Saturday night an' talked things over. We war drinkin' some red-eye, but not much. The hilarity war nothin' like on former occasions, an' it could plainly be seen thet morality war gettin' a strong hold on our leudly citizens.

"Panhandle Rogers made a speech, an' it war a downright good one, too. He said as how they war as fine a lot of men in the country 'round Coyote City ez could be found anywhar. 'But I'll tell yuh, boys,' he yelled, an' I kin hear him sayin' it yet, 'we ain't got the wimmin yere. Yuh never kin hev an upright, progressive community til yuh git wimmin into it, an' start home buildin' with their reldin' influence to guide yuh!'

"A lot of cheerin' an' hollerin' followed this effort, an' some joshin', but Panhandle hed made an impressin. 'Wal, the idee seemed to take with the fellers. It afforded somethin' new to think about, an' drinkin' red-eye gets to be a very monotonous pastime arter a while for any one. Ask any of these old booze fighters if I ain't right. Most of the boys war beginnin' to get along in years whar they hed some sense, an' the idee of gettin' married an' settlin' down appeared to 'em some strong.

"This feelin' war what ultimately led to the formation of the Coyote City Matrimonial Club, which institution war lined by every unmarried gent in the vicinity. Altogether there war some fifty members in good standing. The idee of the club war, of course, the promulgation an' encouragement of the blessed state of matrimony in the community.

"Just how to conduct matters war a question of considerable delicacy, ez no one seemed to know just how to proceed. But one day along come a correspondent for some Eastern journal, an' he writ up th' C. C. M. C., which war the way we alluded to our order. He said as how Coyote City hed an organization of marriageable men—some of the finest cowboys on the Western range," he said—for the purpose of encouragin' female immigration.

"This item went all over the country in different newspapers, an' in a short time Yank Sterling, who war secretary of the club, war almost buried every day under a mass of blue white, an' pink envelopes, which smelled like a perfume factory in a wind-storm.

"When this yere mail begun comin' in Yank conferred with the other officers of the club, an' Panhandle Rogers, who war president, called a special meetin'.

"The sweet-scented missives war opened publicly an' read out loud, so thar war no favoritism showed. They war largely from wimmin who admitted frankly thet they war buttl' an' lovely, who knowed they would be entirely happy if they war married to some nice cowboy. Sum of them said they could milk cows and would do their own washin', but most of the communications war full of romance an' high-falootin' nonsense.

"Wal, naturally enough, most of the boys war nigh on t' bein' stampeded right thar, an' they war for each pickin' out a letter an' readin' it to the party 'round ez a once. But common sense finally prevailed, an' the wild colts war all rounded up an' corralled safe enough for a time. I give the chief credit to Handy Wheeler for this. He sed he hed read somewhere thet it war man's business to do the purposin' an' wimmin's to do the disposin', an', by Heck, he intended startin' his own love-affair!

"This sentiment went with every-buddy but H. Thompson. H. war a particularly homely gent, who might hev been in th' post's eye when he wrote, 'Distance lends enchantment.' H. thought hed take a long chance, seel' ez how thar war little hope fer him at a close-range wooin'. So he picked out a letter from a gal who wrote on baby-blue paper, scented with orange-blossoms. Arter exchangin' in a few letters, H. wrote her to come on to Coyote City, which she dona.

"H. war down to the depot when the train pulled in, an' I reckon they war a good many members of the C. C. M. C. within easy distance.

"Talk about yer lemons, which I heard war the acer expression in Noo York! She war the limit, sure! Not a day under forty, an' the wust lookin' female I ever seed. But H. war game, an' they got married, an' I presume they is happy, though they must take their meals with their backs turned toward each other.

"Arter this incident the members of the club got very offish, an' it looked as if th' purpose of the institution war goin' to fall down completely. But that war before th' 14th of June, three year ago, which date is a very memorable one in Coyote City, an' is the particular time I hev been leadin' up to in this narrashun.

Lariat Jones paused at this point and entered into further negotiations with the bartender, after which he wiped his forehead with a bandanna handkerchief, and resumed:

"On the night of June 13 an unusual hard thunderstorm broke in our vicinity, resultin' in the tearin' out of a railroad bridge two miles east of town. This yere bridge spanned a dry creek which hadn't hed a drop of water in it fer ten year, but this little cloudburst jest fixed things proper.

"This occurrence tied up th' railroad fer two days an' two nights, an' it war this situation which brought the Gaiety Opery Company into our midst, whar a large portion of it hez since resided.

"But not to anticipate. On the mornin' of the fourteenth everybody knowed in short order thet the washin' hed placed Coyote City on the extensive circuit of the Gaiety Opery Company; an' yuh kin understand, in view of what I hev narrated, thet the incident war of more than passin' importance to the C. C. M. C. The visitors occupied two special cars an' a baggage car, bein' as you will oblige, an organization of considerable size an' magnificent.

"In course, none of our club members dona a lick of work from th' minute these facts war spread about. Every gal-lant in th' hall country turned out to make things pleasant fer the ladies. They proved ez sociable a lot as yuh'd care t' meet, arter thet disappointment of bein' delayed hed wore off.

"First thing I knowed, Rubs Smithers, Bonanza Hill, Panhandle Rogers, an' sum more of the more enterprisin' fellers hed sum of the best-lookin' kins in the bunch out ridin' their ponies. It war an' inspirin' sight, I tell you, to see how they appreciated these attentions. Outdoor life on th' range war exceedingly pleasant fer them, an' their cheeks glowed with somethin' besides stage lights. Rubs Smithers allowed as the 'jest loved Coyote City,' an' th' little woman I hed, whose name war Rosie Wilson, agreed th' lie.

"They spent all mornin' ridin' the ponies, drinkin' lemonade at the Broadway grill, tellin' fortunes, an' havin' all kinds of fun; an' before the afternoon hed got very far along it could be seed thet every member of the C. C. M. C. war hit terrible hard in th' region of his heartstrings.

"The manager of th' company war an important-lookin' party called John Short. At first he didn't like the outlook much; but kens how gentils an' polite his gals war bein' treated, he decided thar war no occasion for complaint. Then th' business end of the matter come to him; an' while he was misshin' at least two engagements fer the week, he all of a sudden decided thet it might pay t' put on a perform-

"This 'idea' war no way displeasin' to our citizens; an' arter a little thought Mister Short gits out several bill-posters an' announces thet there would be the first opery ever seen in Coyote City at th' town hall that night.

"It war a rare piece of business enterprise, an' every man, woman, an' child in th' vicinity made immediate arrangements to attend. Members of the C. C. M. C. occupied the three front rows; an' by the time th' rest of our citizens war all in, the showin' was very admirable.

"Of course, the stage-settin' war n't all they might be, not aggrazely littin' our town hall, but we war in no wise inclined to be partic'lar. Th' costumes wore by th' leadin' ladies an' th' chorus war sufficient to please the most fastidious.

"The play put on war 'The Belle of Noo York,' an' I may say thet fer an introduction to th' real thing our citizens couldn't 'a' been better satisfied. The boys simply went wild over the singin', which war led by a piano an' violin.

"It war great sport fer the C. C. M. C. settin' thar pickin' out partic'lar friends. Not much attention war paid to the men in th' show, and it war praps jest as well fer them, though their actin' war quite capable, but not powerful enough.

"When the chorus of young ladies come trippin' in, led by Cora Anglesco, queen of comedopery, the C. C. M. C. riz up in a body an' hollered. The ontra chorus war there, under their stage names, includin' Miss Mirt, Pansy Pina, Birdie Seed, Gladys Glee, Dorothy June, et cetera. My little gal, Rosie, played th' part of Fifi, th' gal frum Paris; an' ez she sung, 'When We Are Married,' she jest turned plumb around an' looked at me, instid of Harry Bronson, th' dub on the stage, who war alleged to be addressin'.

"Wal, you kin imagine what a furor this sort of thing created; an' by the time th' Salvation Army lasse come in an' sung, 'Follow On, Follow On,' Panhandle Rogers hed his shootin'.

rons out an' led the applause with a few shots thro' th' roof. I guarantee thet the appearance of the Gaiety Opery Company in Coyote City war by all means its most successful.

"The manager war tickled to pieces. He jest lived on enthousiasm, an' soon got over duckin' when a gun war fired. "When the show was over an' the curtain down, thar war a general scramble round to the back door on the part of the C. C. M. C. Yuh kin talk about Johnnies over at the stage-door in Noo York, but I reckon thar never war a more enthusiastic set of gentils ever stood in a row than we war that night. Every man hed an earnest look in his eye an' a little hoop of foolery in his pocket. We hed plumb cleaned out the local dealer in foolery, an' hed even bought out th' personal belongings of Sid Parker, our tony gambler.

"When the gals come out thar war a man an' a pony for each one, an' I reckon thar war more courtin' in the vicinity of Coyote City that night than thar ever has been 'fore or since.

"The experience of all the fellers seemed to be largely similar, fer the members of the Gaiety Opery Company seemed to be quite dotty about cow-boys. I slipped the ring on my little gal's finger an' popped the question right out bold-like.

"Who seemed sum startled, then looked at th' ring shinin' in th' moon-light, an' capitulated.

"We'll hustle right down th' road to Judge Sanders's place," I says, an' hev the knot tied immediate.

"Arrivin' at th' Judge's place, thar war a most amazin' sight confrontin' us. The dooryard war filled with mer-ry gals an' hosses. Every one war waitin' to see th' Judge. That necessary an' eminently respectable person hed long since retired, but bein' informed of the purpose of our visit, he would be down right away.

"While the Judge war leisurely engaged in gettin' at his clothes, thar war an awful rumpus started in th' dooryard, by no other person than Manager Short. He war certainly th' angriest man I hev laid eyes on since Charley McQuick beat up Dippy Johnson for stampedin' his herd one Fourth of July.

"Seem' ez how he war the manager, we let him rave, recognizin' his right to be sore. He sed he would be plumb ruined if the gals all left him.

"Th' season's over next week, any way, sed one of the gals pertly. 'An' you've got rich off o' this comp'ny already,' she added by way of givin' an extra flourish.

"At any rate, the knots war all tied, an' each feller rode away with his bride, happy an' contented. The manager an' the mule members of the comp'ny departed fer the East ez soon as th' bridge war fixed, leavin' behind the beautiful an' handsome wimmin, who hev since been the pride of Coyote City.

As he ceased speakin', Lariat Jones heaved a perceptible sigh. I could not forbear making a query:

"Was the venture turned out well, and is everybody happy?"

"Yep, I guess it turned out O. K. fer most of the boys," he replied slowly. "I hed bad luck in my case, havin' found this yere paper waitin' fer me one evenin'." He extended a small slip of paper toward me, which he hed carefully taken from an inner pocket. I unfolded it, and read the following:

Dear Larry:

I am so, so sorry to do this. But about this time every year I got to thinkin' of Broadway and the old life, and I must go back—at least for a little while. But I won't forget you, and remember, Larry, I still love you.

Rosie.

Bein' a poor hand at extendin' sympathy, I merely signaled the bartender again.

"What'll it be?" I asked.

But Lariat Jones war preoccupied, and did not understand. "I guess it'll be Broadway fer me, too, one of these days," he answered dreamily.

The Danger After Grip.

Has often in a run-down system. Weakness, nervousness, lack of appetite, energy and ambition, with disordered liver and kidneys often follow an attack of this wretched disease. The greatest need then is Electric Bitters, the glorious tonic, blood purifier and regulator of stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands have proved that they wonderfully strengthen the nerves, build up the system and restore to health and good spirits after an attack of Grip. If suffering, try them. Only 50 cents. Sold and perfect satisfaction guaranteed by People's Drug Co.

COW FEED

The State University under date of March 26th, sent out the following analysis of the Cow Feed sold by E. P. Doty.

|               |       |
|---------------|-------|
| Protein       | 9.06  |
| Fat           | 3.06  |
| Fibre         | 6.48  |
| N. Free Extr. | 56.99 |
| Ash           | 3.23  |

This is our Buckwheat Feed and Cob Meal, and is just as rich in Protein and Fat as the so-called kiln dried feeds shipped in, and which are being sold at high prices. We will save you money on your feed bills.

We are also selling pure corn and oats. Do not confound our Corn and Oats with what is called commercial feed, which is shipped from Cereal Mills and is nothing more or less than Out Hulls, Corn Bran and other refuse and is of little value as a feed.

We will not quote prices in this "AD" as the market is very uncertain, but any orders received will be filled at the very lowest market price.

We have a supply of Seed Barley and Seed Oats.

We have a good work horse for sale.

ALL ORDERS DELIVERED PROMPTLY.

Bulldog Determination Builds Prosperity

Showing Why it Pays to Buy at Home and How We Can Save You Money On Your Lumber Bill

Any town or community that gets a bulldog grip on prosperity is fortunate. But the bulldog grip will not hold if some citizens pull one way and some another. All must pull or push in the same direction.

For instance, if half the people want Main street macadamized and the other half insist that Central avenue should have the macadam and each half holds out for its side there isn't going to be any macadamization in that town.

Once there was a town with a creek running through it. Folks living on one side wanted a bridge built at a certain point. Folks on the other side wanted the bridge at another point. The two sections fought so doggedly over the issue that no bridge was built. One side of the creek seceded from the other and now there are two half towns where there used to be a whole one.

Another way to make a half town out of a whole one is for half the people to buy their goods through the Mail Order Houses in the big cities while the other half buys from the local stores and factories.

B. & H. Prices Compete Successfully With Mail Order House Prices.

When you're ready to purchase anything in lumber, building material, cement, etc., it will pay you and pay well to call first on us see our stock and get our prices. We'll save you money. Mail order house prices are not to be considered after you've had our quotations. In the first place they are even lower than Mail Order prices to start with, you know what you are buying, do not have to pay the freight. It's a duty you owe yourself, your community and your purse. Better see us first—and save money.

UNCLE WALT The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

When he comes around assessing I consider him distressing, notwith- standing his politeness and the sunny smile he wears; all his dancing and his singing to my heart are never bringing anything but grief and sor- row, and addition.

THE ASSESSOR to my eyes. All his jolly and jollying and jol- ling I consider most revolting, for a humorous assessor is a bird I don't admire; he should be as grim and sober as a graveyard. In October, he is as sombre as a mourner and as clam- my as a corpse. Let all other men be joyous and their mirth will not annoy us, but a Sunny Jim assessor gives me fifty seven pains; and his levity seems shocking and his jests are coarse and mocking, for it's ill to be an assessor where a grievous sorrow reigns. Oh, the blithe assessor wears with his everlasting queries, and he has a way of saying, without uttering a word with a glance that's scarcely pleasant: "You're another Ananias, and the values you are giving are out- rageously absurd!" And he seems to be suggesting while he's knocking round the questioning that I want to beat the city or the county of its dues; and I feel within me burning an im- perishable yearning to assault him with a bulldog and enter him with my shoes.

A Common Misfortune.
"They fell awfully in love before their marriage."
"Yes, and that kind of a fall is re- sponsible for many a matrimonial jar."

A Standing Grudge.
Mrs. Whyte—Mrs. Brown doesn't seem to like you very well.
Mrs. Black—No, I crossed the ocean on the same steamer with her once and she knows I know how she looks when she is senesick.

Dusted, but Busy.
The little tin horn which made us cringe
is dusted, but get its tone is worse than ever, for now the kids use it for a megaphone.

LANDS.

IF YOU ARE interested in real estate in the Northwest, you will do well to place an ad in the Want Columns of the Aberdeen Daily News, Aber- deen, S. D., the best advertising me- dium in this territory. Read every day by more than 25,000 people. Rates: 1 cent per word, first insertion, special rate by the week or month. Write for sample copy. 45-1f

ADVERTISERS—The great state of North Dakota, offers unlimited op- portunities for business to classified advertisers. The centralized adver- tising medium is the Fargo Daily and Sunday Courier-News, the only seven day paper in the state and the paper which carries the largest amount of classified advertising. The Courier- News covers North Dakota like a blanket; reaching all parts of the state the day of publication; it is the paper to use in order to get results. Rates: One cent per word first inser- tion; one-half cent per word suc- ceeding insertions; fifty cents per line per month. Address The Courier-News, Fargo, N. D. 20-1f

PIND LAND BUYERS through adver- tising in the Daily Journal-World, Lawrence, Kansas. The farm lands about Lawrence are the best in Kansas and therefore are high priced. Young farmers are looking for cheaper farms. The Daily Journal-World has a sworn circulation of 5,500 about half of which is in the country and carries a full page of Want Ads. Rates, 1c per word 1 time, 3/4c per word for one week. The World Com- pany, Lawrence, Kansas. 08-1f

IF IT IS A FARM you want to sell or trade or real estate you want to get action on, there is but one paper in the southwestern part of Nebraska that reaches the people you want to do business with, and that is the Hastings, (Nebr.) Tribune, daily and weekly. 45-1f

ADVERTISERS—In placing your ad, three things must be considered—circulation, class of readers and price. The Reporter gives your ad greater measure of service for less money than any other newspaper in Northern Iowa. The Reporter is read by 30,000 people every issue. Adver- tising rates one-half cent a word, each insertion. Cash with order. Reporter, Waterloo, Iowa. 46-1f

ADVERTISERS—The Hutchinson Daily News with a guaranteed aver- age circulation of 9,293 for the month of April, 1911, affords the best adver- tising medium in Hutchinson. Popu- lation 16,672, and the Arkansas Valley (The Garden Spot of the World), rates: 1 cent per word, per inser- tion, cash with the order. News, Hutchin- son, Kansas. 47-1f

A THOROUGH TEST.

Cures that last are cures that count.

Donn's Kidney Pills make thorough cures.

The following case is typical.

Janesville residents should be convinced.

The testimony is confirmed—the cure lasted.

Proof like this cannot be ignored.

Mrs. William Molina, 310 N. Academy St., Janesville, Wis., says: "About two years ago I had an attack of kidney trouble and at that time I got a supply of Donn's Kidney Pills at the People's Drug Store. The use of only two boxes cured me. Other members of my family have taken Donn's Kidney Pills with satisfactory results and I therefore know this remedy to be a reliable one." (Statement given in August 1908.)

The DIAMOND CIPHER

A Baseball Romance

By W. A. PHELON

(Copyright, 1912, by W. A. PHELON. Chapter VII.)

Solano must have conspired with the sun, for he appeared at Brockett's home the next morning before the day had fairly dawned. The Cuban was unable to surprise his friend, however—Harry had been stirring for an hour, and was fully equipped for the journey when Ramon's ring was heard. Ramon's words were quickly said. Mrs. Brockett and Bertha bravely struggled to keep back the tears that insisted on coming to the surface, and the youngsters were soon upon their way—messengers of peace or war, guardians of a nation's secret documents, and keepers of a cipher that was destined to bewilder the ablest interpreters of Germany and of Japan. Brockett had figured on catching the earliest morning train to New York, and the boys further agreed that, instead of riding clear through to the new terminals in the metropolis, they would drop off in Jersey City, spend an hour in circling round that busy burg, and then take one of the ferries to Manhattan, thus baffling any enemies who might be tipped to await them at the great railroad station. They were blocking out additional plans, when they were suddenly intercepted by a huge man of rather more than middle age—a gigantic German, white of muscle and shaggy as to brows—a Bismarck come to life, and doubled in his bulky power. The immense German came towering down the street, almost deserted at this early hour, and almost collided with Solano. The Cuban respectfully sidestepped to permit the old gentleman's passage, and the massive German, walking painfully, uncertainly, as though troubled with rebellious feet, staggered almost into the gutter, regaining his balance, he beamed upon the youngsters, who had advanced with ready hands to aid him, and leaned for an instant upon Brockett's shoulder.

"I thank you, young man, for do help," spoke the German. "Ach, but it is bad von you grow old, and do abhorrence of age tells, on do honest side, I believe mein the is disarranged. Will you adjust it?"

Brockett promptly began a process of first aid to the injured tie, when the huge German, seizing him with a hand whose grip showed no trace of feeble age, emitted a loud bellow of "Holice! Holice! Robbers, robbers!"

Two astounded Brocketts strove to break loose from the old man's grasp, but the German's clutch was one of steel. Strong men, athletes of renown, had tried that deadly wrestle in old days in the Fatherland. The Baron Zollern had been a man of might in Prussia, and round the campfires of the German army they still tell stories of his tremendous deeds. Brockett was a powerful youngster, and an athlete in good training, but in that headlock clutch he was like a child. Solano rushed to the assistance of his captured friend; the baron shoved him away with the open palm of his disengaged hand, and once more that hoarse yell of "Holice, Holice!" rung out upon the morning air.

A whistle blew in the distance, and there came the clattering sound of heavy feet coming upon the rapid run. A stalwart officer rushed up, took in the apparent situation at a glance, and laid a detaining hand on Brockett's shoulder.

"What's the trouble, sir?" the policeman queried.

"Vy," answered Baron Zollern, "dis young man attempted to rob me. He tried to seize do diamond pin in my tie, and he snatched a bookcase from out my coat. See, here it is!"

The baron's hand shot lightning fast into Brockett's inside pocket, and emerged clutching a small, thin wallet. Baron Zollern was not only a Hercules and an able general, but something of a master in the art of legerdemain.

"Here is my bookcase, officer. Und, if I was not mistaken, he has also taken from me some papers—all envelopes, rich contents documents of much importance. Will you hold him, and look out for his front, till I recover my papers?"

Solano was already moving forward, with a vague notion of an attack upon the policeman, when there was another clatter of feet from the rear. A second policeman was coming up. Halting about twenty feet away, this officer took stock of the conditions and, grinning cheerfully, awaited the call of his partner.

Brockett had to do the fastest thinking of his life. An explanation to the policeman—who seemed a zealous but particularly thick-headed pair—would be worse than useless. They would simply arrest the boys and, undoubtedly, permit the baron to go upon his way with whatever plunder he could find upon his captives. The baron's searching hand was again thrusting eagerly into his inside coat-pocket—which, as it chanced, contained nothing but a few letters and wholly worthless objects. He would find nothing there, but his search, aided by the policeman at his side, would be a thorough one.

"I'll give you your papers, sir," spoke up the prisoner. "Will you let me off if I hand them over?"

The baron smiled benevolently. "I fear dot I would be gombounding a felony," he purred. "Still, I would be easy mit you if do gaso efer game to a trial. Vero is my papers?"

Brockett began fumbling in his waistcoat. Baron Zollern, smiling broadly, stood by with extended hand, and the officer dropped his paw from the captive's shoulder. Brockett delved through his vest pockets for a moment, brought up his empty hand, and then, with the speed of a pouncing leopard, flung himself to his knees, seized Baron Zollern's ankles, and pulled savagely.

The huge German, with a roar of surprise and helpless rage, toppled backward, landing on the base of his spine with a crash that fairly shook the street. Brockett, regaining his feet at once, made a half turn, and darted off, while the astounded policeman, making one wild clutch in the air, managed to catch his toe against the prostrate form of the baron, and fell heavily upon him. The grunt with which the baron halted the advent of the officer upon his stomach was a fitting anticlimax to the thud of his earlier fall.

Solano dashed after his friend, but the second policeman sprang eagerly to intercept him. Brockett, glancing back in full flight, saw the predicament of the Cuban, and, halting for an instant, shouted, "Slide, Ramon, slide!"

Solano went to the pavement in a compact, moving mass, and shot along the stones, feet first. The oncoming shoes caught the policeman on the legs. He rose like some light and joyous bird, shot through the air with a howl of dismay, and joined the popular assembly on the stony ground. Before any of the three fallen men could pull his senses together or even struggle to his feet, Brockett and Solano had turned the nearest corner, dodged up an alley, and headed down a side street. As they ran they heard hoarse bellowings, the shrilling of whistles, and the thudding of clubs upon the pavement, but the sounds grew fainter, fainter, faded to a whisper and died away. The boys pulled up in the shadow of a flat-building, and regained their wind.

"I'm sorry for the big German," remarked Brockett. "That bump will keep him in bed a week, if it doesn't cripple him for life. It's a vicious trick, a devil's own bit of work, but I couldn't see any other chance. What on earth was the idea in that big fellow's head, I'd like to know."

"If your top-piece isn't solid ivory," returned Solano, "you know well enough. It's a dollar to a crushed lemon that our Japanese friend was waiting round the next corner to grab the papers, and I'd risk a little something that those policemen were planted ahead of time where they could come forward in a hurry."

"You said beautifully, Ramon," laughed Brockett as they resumed their march, jogging along at a fairly rapid gait. "If you had only said home that way when we needed it, on about ten afternoons I could mention, we could have saved a flock of games."

The Cuban flushed, and then laughed back at his friend.

"This was a different occasion, Harry. I felt more as if I were sliding at an umpire this time. Somehow or other I never could hear the idea of spiking an infielder, and that's why I slowed up so often when I should have hit the grit."

"This time, though," Brockett chuckled, "you slid for keeps. I shudder to think what would have happened to that policeman if you had only had your spikes on."

Solano stopped, and lifted one foot. Something flashed keenly, venomously, from the sole and heel.

"I had them on," confessed the Cuban, "and that officer must have the worst-looking pair of shins that were ever taken to a hospital. Honestly, Harry, I'd feel like a brute if it wasn't for the circumstances and for the value of the work that we have set ourselves to do."

Silently Brockett shook the Cuban's hand, and the youngsters, fully rested from their run, jogged onward to the railroad station.

CHAPTER VIII.

The journey north was made without special incident, and the time was spent in figuring out as complex and ramified a route as possible. With railroad maps and time tables, the boys outlined a tour that would twist and turn like a collection of S's, and yet, even with due allowance for delayed trains and possible intervals on foot or on horseback, would land them at Rancho Nogal within the time limit set by their superiors. Neither of the youngsters was so optimistic as to expect a smooth, uninterrupted journey, and each, as he speculated upon the chance of trouble, was mentally thankful for the presence of the strong, nervy, capable youth beside him.

Brockett, with a good-sized map in hand, drew out a pencil, and began marking down a few lines of connection, when the Cuban, with one quick jerk, wrested the pencil from his hand.

"Harry, you need a guardian. Your mentality is just about fit for the duty-house."

"You should know better, Harry, than to mark out our real route on any map or sheet of paper. We don't believe, of course, that there is anyone on this train who is on our track—and yet our best policy is to believe it up to the minute we reach Jersey City. Just for an experiment, we'll say, I have an idea."

"Why not have it toasted, with mayonnaise on the side? I'm hungry enough to eat it."

"Well, the African brother just announced that 'lunch am now served in do dining cab ahead.' Let's go in and punish the provender. And now—watch, please, without appearing to do so. Notice the way I lay these maps upon the seat. Notice, also, that I take this little postage stamp, fold it, and gum it with one-half on each page of this time-table. Anyone who opens the time-table tears the postage stamp. Now, let's go and attend to the rats."

The boys did full justice to their lunch, and sauntered back to their seats. Their maps and papers lay apparently undisturbed, but Solano contracted his black eyebrows significantly as he examined the time-table. It had been opened, and the blinding stamp had been torn in two.

"Still after us, old man," remarked the Cuban. "No, no, don't fasten any Sherlock Holmes gaze upon the other passengers. Don't show a sign of surprise or worry. That would be playing right into their hand. Listen, now: when we reach Jersey City, let's make a lightning exit without waiting for the train to reach the west-shore terminals. Let's take a chance on getting our clothes dusty. If anyone is fool enough to rush out after us, we have him spotted—if he stays on the train we have a lot more chance to get away before he can land in the station."

Two Turkey-Raising States.

Texas raises more turkeys than any other state—perhaps because turkeys require plenty of room for range, and Texas surely can give them that. Little Rhode Island, however, is said to produce the largest number of big turkeys—some of them weighing 40 pounds, and worth 40 cents for every pound.

Catchy Advertising.

A Dutchman had a cart from which he peddled wieners—sausages. One day he saw on a bake wagon: "You need a blaucit." It struck him as a good advertisement, so he painted on his cart, "You need a blaucit, but you need a wieners worst."

SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter. Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help. I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt. You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall always recommend your medicines for female troubles."—Mrs. C. Cole, Fitchville, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Read This Advice. Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should immediately seek restoration to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Holland Service From Factory to You

Our Expert Service for planning and installing, coupled with the best Warm Air Furnace ever made, "The Holland," built up for us a heating business second to none in the States of Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Holland Furnaces lead because they are better, are installed better, and with our direct service, cost no more than the ordinary fuel-wasting kind.

Holland Furnaces "Make Warm Friends"

Ask any lucky owner "Why" and you will learn that a Holland Furnace gives such an abundance of heat, warm air, is so clean and easy to operate, so durable and free from repairs and so very saving in fuel, that it cannot help but delight any user. The cold weather in January proved to many people that stoves are inadequate when cold weather comes and many others learned, to their sorrow, that steam and hot water are also faulty heating when it comes to a real test. Our sales show the cold spell has more than doubled over the same period for any other year.

We can "Make Your Home a Place Where Life is Worth Living." Just call on our local branch manager, or write for free book, "Holland Service From Factory to You." We have many "Warm Friends" in your city and vicinity. Why not yours?

Battle of Bald (or Leggett's) Hill, Atlanta, July 28, 1864

The horrors of war, the goryness of some of the scenes of the battle, described with a human touch, are cleverly delineated in the account of the second day's fighting at the battle of Atlanta, July 22, 1864, taken from the journal of the late James G. Wray. The story of the battle, Saturday's issue, is perhaps more illustrative of real fighting in the Civil War, as the second day's fight was more severe, when the Rebels tried to win back the fortress captured on July 21st, by attacking the rear and the front of part of the Union army. All of the Union forces were not engaged, but the companies that took part in the engagement suffered as heavily as those who were not engaged. During the war, of Mr. Wray's regiment, a large number were killed and wounded and a number were captured by the Confederate forces. Of the sixty men of the regiment who went out on skirmish at the beginning of the battle, fifteen were killed, the rest being killed, wounded or captured. Of the "thirtieth Illinois," which went into the battle with at least four or five hundred men, only twenty men and the captain remained when the regiment was attacked by the attack of the Rebels from the rear.

Mr. Wray's story of the battle is as follows: On the morning of the 22nd (July 1864) Co. C and Co. F went out on skirmish. As we were forming behind the works we heard a cheer off to our right, and soon a messenger came with word that the Fifteenth Corps was in the enemy's works. Then we cheered the 15th Corps and at that Gen. Leggett said that they had just got into line and we were a day ahead. Then we cheered again. We had not had any breakfast, and as it was our first day's work, I did not have any breakfast, but went out without any breakfast. When we had formed our line—Co. C on the right and Co. F on the left—we advanced over the works into the ravine and up the hill in our front. There we found a line of works that the Rebels had for their second line the day before. In the ravine we found a dead Rebel. He had a sword and boots and appeared to be an officer.

When we got to the top of the hill, we were fired upon by the Rebels in the hill in our front. We did not see where the shot came from as the hill was covered with clumps of trees, and they were hidden by them. We advanced into the second ravine, nearly to a creek, and kept up a fire at the Rebels in our front. We were in an open field, the right of our company at the road from Bald Hill to Atlanta. It so happened that Charles Hunter, John Hodges and I were on the left of the company on the west side of a fence that ran east and west. Some Rebels had a good range on us for they would deliver the shells with their bullets. A boy, Fisk, and the two Stars, John Hilton, Chase, Felt and some others were behind some brush that grew in the fence corner. I thought it was better to be in my place so I went to the brush. They would shoot through the brush, then jump to one side just in time to escape a bullet from the Rebels. The Rebels could see where we were, but we could not see them. Warren Felt seemed to enjoy drawing the Rebels fire. He would shoot and the others would watch to see where the Rebels shot from, but the Rebels were so well masked that we could not see their smoke.

I could not enjoy the sport, and as it was dangerous there as it was in my place. I went back to Hodges and Hunter. Our battery on Bald Hill was shelling the Rebels and we were out so that many of the shells would burst behind us. We were in nearly as much danger from our own shells as from those of the Rebels.

Hodges, Hunter and I were each on a fence corner. They were to my left; Hodges next to me. Hodges thought he saw where a Rebel shot from, and put his gun through the fence to wait until the Rebel shot again, and then shoot at the smoke. Soon a shell from the guns on Bald Hill in our rear came and knocked John's cap off and threw the fence down in front of him. John was very much surprised. The shell came so close to his head as to burst the hairs of powder and dust from the shell on his cap. The shell burst a few feet in front of him.

I suspect that each one thought he was in the most exposed place; at least that is how I felt about it. Sergeant Willard was with the left wing of the company and seemed to think if he was on the north side of the fence he would be happy. He was in a field without any cover, as were all those on the left, and all were lying on the ground. Willard got up and made a run for the fence, and of course the Rebels shot at him. He jumped over, but it was a high fence and his haversack did not go over with him, but stuck on the fence, and as it was nearly as large as he was, he held him there. He kicked and struggled to get away, and the Rebels made the shells fly from the rails around him. The sergeant was not there more than half a minute, but it no doubt seemed an age to him.

The shell knocking the fence down in front of us suggested that we should pile up the rails. We did this, and Hunter, Hodges and I laid down behind them. This I think was about eleven o'clock and we laid there watching for the smoke of the Rebels guns to shoot at, several times we saw some of the Rebels watching us, but they were better hid than we were.

One drawback for the works was the big feeling of some of the men, and Sergeant Cronk was one of the worst. He had spells when he appeared to feel awful pain, and this 22nd of July was one of his "big feeling" days. He appeared to feel as big as a barn, and at the same time he was trying to hide behind a few stones and clods of clay that he had scraped together.

I had been up at work for two days and nights and was very tired. About one o'clock Hunter roused me. At the same time we heard firing in our rear. We did not know what to think about it. Then the Rebels in our front opened up more heavily on us. In a little while our picket officer came to the top of the hill in our rear and close quarters as we were then, the works were too low to be of much use, except at the right of our regiment, where a fort had been built, although the cannon had been taken out of it. I suppose those guns were among those that were about eighty rods to our rear.

Many wounded men came running along to the rear, all injured in different parts. One man that came past me had his lower jaw shot off and his tongue and parts of the jaw hanging out. The sight of it almost made me faint. I ever saw the worst look of any wound I ever saw. The Rebels came right on up to our works, so that some of our men were taken prisoners from the works, although I did not see anything like that. We stood our ground until after dark, and then, according to my impression, the firing gradually died away and the Rebels went back the same way.

I went to sleep and at daylight of the morning of the 23rd when I awoke, many of our men were stirring around, but the ground was about covered with dead men. The old line of works that extended south of us was lined on both sides. Many had been wounded away from the works and had crawled into them for protection, but we had a raking fire on the line all night and so had the Rebels, who built a line facing north toward us. These wounded men had gone into the worst place there was. All were dead, for they had been shot many times.

I went down to our old works during the day and saw the dead men lying so close as to almost touch each other, for a distance of as much as forty rods, and I did not know how much farther they were, our men and rebels all dead that were inside of their lines and our men did the same for them, and exchanged dead, each side burying their own. Several trenches were dug about six feet wide and long enough to hold what was wanted. Some of them were as much as ten rods long. Then the dead would be laid side by side and some that were known, or had friends, would have a stick with the name cut on it stuck up at the head. A few were put in separate graves.

When I first awoke the next morning I was lying behind the works. I had no blanket, but I saw many men lying around with blankets over them. I did not realize at first that they were all dead, but such was the fact. The wounded had been taken back in the night when I was asleep, and one more thing happened then. They have it, the firing gradually died away and the Rebels went back the same way, but the letter that Craig wrote to the Herald, Journal says that they were taken back by a bayonet charge that I know nothing of. I must have gone to sleep during the lull of the battle and the charge was made over me in my sleep, but I was in it that the same.

The loss of our regiment was over sixty in killed and wounded on the 22nd, and the eighty three the day before, making over one hundred and forty in the two days. The morning of the 23rd we had about 400 men, and were now reduced to 250 and not all of them were with us on the 23rd. We were so mixed up that it took some time to get in shape. The Rebels line of works inside of city limits, Map Union soldiers lost that one and one half miles from center of Atlanta. Up ravine—our route we could see miles and some other bags.

Mistaken Kindness. Permitting relatives or fond friends to give a child sweetmeats is mistaken kindness—in many homes of rascally children are taught not to accept offerings of this nature. The early years of development depend so materially upon strict diet.

THE EMPEROR NERO.

By Howard L. Rann.

The emperor Nero, was an illustrious character who waxed and waned about the time that the Romans were being backed up for the remains of the Roman empire. Nero did most of his waxing at the expense of the citizens of Rome, whom he introduced to the evergreen shade in large and melancholy relays. He was also the inventor of several new styles of sudden death. It got so around Rome that a man could hardly go down to pick up six bars of soap for a quarter without being pounced upon by one of Nero's emissaries in a green tunic and murderous smile and draped tastefully over an iron fence erected for that purpose. On this account, nearly everybody in Rome ordered their groceries by telephone. Nero was a very disagreeable man to live with, as he had the unpleasant habit of poisoning his relatives without saying anything to them about it. By this means he killed a great many people who resented his action and showed by their manner that they were completely surprised. Nero had a large number of side-splitting jokes on the common people. Being in a particularly jocular and playful mood one evening, he went out and started a successful bonfire in the Coliseum by pouring coal oil over the janitor, after which he returned home, donned a neat hard elder nose and the perfracted some popular music on the fluted. History relates that Nero was about as poor a fiddler as ever came out of Rome, but nobody ever mentioned it to him and got out of the palace without the aid of the undertaker. After a while, the Roman people got tired of being killed before they had time to attend to any of the funeral arrangements, and sent word to Nero that they were going to hire an emporer who would stay on the water wagon long enough to also the minutes of the preceding meeting. Thereupon Nero retired to a change of box clothes, and taking careful aim at his left ventricle, stabbed himself with so much accuracy that everybody was highly pleased. This was one of the brightest things Nero ever did, and as a result his funeral made a tremendous popular hit.

Flanders "20" Delivery Car A Studebaker Body on the Famous Flanders "20" Chassis

Price $800—f. o. b. Detroit

Are you one of the merchants who have concluded that the day of the delivery car is here? Have you been convinced that the enterprising dealer horse delivery is a thing of the past? We hope so. The deeper you go into the problem, the more clearly you will see it.

Prestige and lowered costs have had their say and they are what count. Efficiency—that's the story. Whether you are a small dealer or large, the question is coming right up to you. Which shall it be—Horse or Automobile? Have you realized that on the face of it the case is all in favor of the automobile not the horse? A car is faster, stronger and tireless. Settle the cost question, and there is no argument.

We want you to consider this; you must consider it, for your competitor surely will. This isn't our belief alone. You merchants have told us the same story many times. "But," said you, "where is the car we want? One car is cheap in price and quality. It has only two speeds; repair bills are too high. Another is better but costs more and is no larger. We need a delivery car. But where is the right car?"

The Flanders "20" is Ready

Today you have your answer. The Flanders "20" is the car. In it are combined handsome appearance, economy and A1 service at a fair price. The Flanders "20" is everything a delivery car ought to be. You need it. And when you buy it, you are going to be immensely satisfied.

The unique distinction of this car is that in it are combined the brains of two great divisions of the Studebaker Corporation. The body is the product of the great South Bend works where the best delivery bodies in the world have been made for years. "Studebaker" means the best and the whole world knows it.

The chassis is the famous Flanders "20." Put it to the test and it will stand up. The automobile man does not live today who does not know that the Flanders "20" is one of the best buys in the market.

That's a great combination! A Studebaker body a Studebaker chassis! Where else will you find such skill built into a delivery car?

Appearance and Power of Flanders "20"

When the South Bend experts designed the body they made it strong, simple spacious. They discarded the ugly "camel back" effect of competing cars. What use was that? They built a car of straight lines and obtained at once ample room and the best looks on the street. Then they finished the body with all the skill which the name Studebaker implies. A rich, deep green, with cream panel, finished like a coach. No wonder it is a good car. The merchant who owns one can be certain his customers know he has the handsomest car out.

Then for power there is the famous Flanders "20" Chassis. A stock Flanders "20" Touring Car—the chassis—took up more than 1000 lbs., load last autumn and drove 1200 miles from Seattle, Wash., to Hazelton, B. C. The oldest settlers said it couldn't be done. No automobile, no wheeled vehicle had ever made the trip. For hundreds of miles the route lay over the merest apologies for roads and for a long distance not even a horse had ever been before. The car pulled through bogs, morasses made worse by heavy rains, overcame the roughest forest trails and finally won. For many miles of the worst going the breaking of a single part must have meant failure of the trip. Yet that car pulled over 500 miles on low gear carried its enormous load and proved once for all that in stamina and sheer bull-dog courage the Flanders "20" hasn't a superior at any price.

The Car's Record

We have lived with this Flanders "20" since the day it was put on the market and people said the car couldn't be what we claimed and yet sold for $800. Today our owners not only believe in the car; they know it through and through, and they "boast" it. Go from Maine to California and ask anyone of them. Then try any country on the globe. For during November practically 37% of all U. S. foreign automobile exports and 50% of all American cars exported to Australia and the British Isles were Studebaker cars.

The car's record is an open book. It is powerful, economical and trustworthy. In addition, the Delivery body can be removed and the Touring Car body put in its place in a few minutes. They are interchangeable.

Remember this. We believe you are going to buy a delivery car and we know the Flanders "20" is the one big value. It is a Studebaker product. It is worth your money. Price, $800.

Questions of maintenance cost—every little item—will interest you. These, together with our full guarantee and honest study of your peculiar problems, we will be glad to go over with you in detail. Our first run on the cars is limited and for prompt delivery we advise quick action. Now ready.
